Fun in the Sun

Good weather seems to have arrived finally after a month's delay. Thousands of Victoria youngsters are now convinced July 21, not June 21, is the first day of summer among these three caught by Times photographer Bill Halkett on Dallas Road waterfront: Bernadette Neyts, 10, right; little Paula, three, who couldn't remember last name, and Olga Neyts, three. Weatherman reports a high of 65 degrees today which may not be too warm but is "tops" after the treatment the city has been receiving. He points out winds are keeping the mercury down, winds which were expected to increase to westerly 25 late this afternoon or evening. But, he added, blue skies will continue "probably for the whole of the week-end."

Peronista Party Head Resigns; New Violence in Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—Papal nuncio (ambassador) Mario Zanin said today the seven-month-old controversy between church and state in Argentina is near settlement.

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Rear Admiral Alberto Teissaire, Argentina's vice president, announced today his resignation as head of the Peronista party.

Teissaire's unexpected announcement came amidst political demonstrations marked by some violence.

Political activity, including formation of new parties, has heightened since the abortive June 16 revolt.

Teissaire issued a party statement Thursday calling on all political parties to support a true appeal made by President Peron in a speech earlier this month.

Peron announced on July 15 he was stepping down as head of the Peronista revolution to become "the president of all Argentines, friends and foes." He was not an official in the party itself.

SEVERAL ARRESTS
One person was reported killed by gunfire in political violence early today.

The shooting, second outbreak in 24 hours, occurred as members of the opposition Radical party left the political rally after midnight and paraded through the city's movie district.

Police arrested several demonstrators as crowds leaving the theatre milled in panic.

Pope Ailing
VATICAN CITY (UP)—Pope Pius XII is undergoing infrared ray treatment for a rheumatic pain in his right shoulder, Vatican sources said today.

The papal physician, Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, said the 79-year-old pontiff's general condition was good.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $300; ENTRANTS FAIL AGAIN

The Times' popular crossword puzzle contest prize hits the $300 mark since no winner was found to last week's teaser.

One setback for many contestants was found in the clue "May be carefully noted by a student of an old manuscript."

Most puzzlers gave the answer as "date" but "data" was judged to be the more comprehensive word. The date would merely be one piece of data. Also, there must be a certain amount of data but perhaps no date at all.

Other stumbling blocks were "Star" for which the common answer was "Stay" and "Ace" which most contestants thought should be "Act."

Complete answer and explanation of last week's puzzle together with the new contest for this week will be found on Page 23 of today's Times.

LOGGERS' SPORTS

World Champs Clash Saturday at Sooke

Two world champions will perform Saturday in the famous loggers' sports to be held in conjunction with All Sooke Day, annual celebration on the Sooke River flats.

Ardie Wickheim, of Sooke, a well known performer in the log burling competition, will be making his first public appearance since he won the world's burling championship at Spokane last month.

His stiffest competition likely will come from his younger brother, Jubel, who won the event at Sooke last year.

Most spectacular event on the program will see Dan Sailor of Ketchikan defending his title in the tree-climbing competition. Holder of world's records in climbing contests on the Pacific coast, he expects his hardest competition from Mal-

Saigon Riot Protested By Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian members of the three-nation armistice commission in Indo-China have been instructed to protest last Wednesday's riot in Saigon in which mobs attacked the commission's headquarters, External Affairs Minister Pearson said today.

Mr. Pearson informed the Commons that Canadian officials were told to associate themselves with Indian and Polish commission members in protesting the riot and asking Viet Nam authorities to ensure against recurrence of "such a deplorable event."

The minister said Canadian representatives were "singularly fortunate" and were neither harmed nor suffered property loss.

500,000-Man Force Will Bolster NATO

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's first rearmament bills for West Germany's new 500,000-man defence force won final parliamentary approval today.

The Bundestag (upper house) swiftly passed two bills authorizing the government to call up the first volunteers this year and creating a permanent civilian committee to screen the appointment of all senior officers.

The bills now go to President Theodor Heuss for his signature. They were approved by the Bundestag (lower house) last week.

Today's vote cleared the way for Adenauer's government to take the first steps toward building up the 12-division army, 1,300-plane jet air force and coastal-defence navy pledged to the Atlantic alliance.

Defence ministry officials said the first officers enrolled will be sent to NATO headquarters, probably early next week. More volunteers are due to enter training schools in the United States, Britain and West Germany in the fall.

'CONSTRUCTIVE, VITAL, IMAGINATIVE'—PEARSON

OTTAWA (BUP)—External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson today called President Dwight Eisenhower's proposal to exchange defence blueprints and freedom of the skies with Russia "most imaginative, important and constructive."

But he declined in the House of Commons to make a full-dress policy statement on the proposal.

"The statement is too important to make it possible for me to give an unconsidered opinion or to make an analysis," Pearson said when George Hees (PC, Toronto-Broadview), asked for the cabinet's comment.

Government officials, according to informed sources, are concerned about the effect of President Eisenhower's proposal on Canada. Involvement is seen possible because of U.S. defence installations on Canadian soil.

Forest Fires Raze Big Area In Ontario

20,000 Square Miles Closed Down; Menace Worst in Seven Years

By The Canadian Press

Ontario's rich timberlands, scarred by forest blazes since late spring, were faced today with the worst fire menace in seven years.

The situation is so bad that 200,000 square miles of woodlands, nearly a quarter of the province, has been sealed to public travel.

Volunteers were rounded up from street corners, beer parlors and streets to help fight the outbreaks. Some short-term prisoners have been released from jails to help.

All told 110 fires were burning through the north country. Thirty-nine were raging unchecked, defying the battles of 4,500 firefighters.

Some 250,000 acres of forest have been destroyed so far this year. New fires are starting faster than the old ones can be stamped out. A quarter of the province is one big tinder box because of a hot spell and little rainfall, the Ontario forestry department said.

The fire-fighting has been continuous since last May 15, the longest period without a break in Ontario's history.

The B.C. Forest Service reported today the forest fire hazard in B.C. is nearing the "critical" stage.

Officials said ten days of continued dry hot weather could force a woods closure. More than one-fifth of all forest fires in B.C. this year occurred last week. There were 159 fires, raising the year's total to 524.

None of the fires still burning are on Vancouver Island. Fighting forest fires has cost B.C. $91,315 so far this year.

More Countries In UN Tentative Plan by India

NEW DELHI (AP)—India was reported today to be taking the first tentative steps seeking United Nations membership for a number of Asian and European countries—both Communist and non-Communist.

Diplomatic information said Prime Minister Nehru sounded out Russian and British leaders, in the course of his visit to Europe, advocating UN membership for all nations represented at the Bandung Asian-African conference—except Red China—and for the Communist East European satellites, Austria and Italy.

The African-Asian applicants would include Ceylon, Japan, Nepal and Libya.

I spent an evening with the Red Army. Not all of it, just some 200 singing, dancing, riotous performers who would steal the show on any stage.

Never again will I see Red Army soldiers, faces a blank mask, marching solemnly and stiffly, without remembering the two hours at a summer theatre in one of Moscow's parks when their ensemble of 150 singers ran the gamut from stirring marching songs to gentle folk melodies.

Where teams of some 40 men danced themselves into laughter and exhaustion. It was the new Russia at its best.

Soviet Not Satisfied With 'Blueprint' Offer

GENEVA (CP)—President Eisenhower today urged Soviet Russia to tear down the Iron Curtain and permit freer exchange of ideas and travellers between East and West.

Eisenhower made the proposal at the sixth session of the Big Four conference, which began an hour later than usual to give the foreign ministers more time to work on three other problems—disarmament, German unification and European security.

The leaders instructed their foreign ministers to continue discussions on possible ways of dealing with these problems.

FINAL SESSION
An American spokesman said the Big Four arranged for a shortened meeting to begin at 11 a.m. (3 a.m. PDT) Saturday, presumably the last of the conference.

Eisenhower's remarks were directed to the fourth and last item on the agenda—possible ways of increasing contacts between Russia and the West.

James Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, said Premier Bulganin's proposal for a non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Communist East European Warsaw pact was discussed.

Hagerty made no mention immediately of whether there was any discussion on Eisenhower's proposal for an exchange of military information between Russia and the United States.

BASIC ISSUE
Reuters news agency quoted a senior member of the Soviet delegation to the Big Four talks as saying his government could not be satisfied with Eisenhower's proposals for an exchange of military base blueprints as a step towards world disarmament.

The spokesman said the Soviet government does not doubt the sincerity of Eisenhower's proposal. But he contended it bypasses the basic issue—the prohibition of nuclear weapons.

Nevertheless, the Soviet delegate said, the ideas would bear examination along with Soviet and British disarmament plans.

Eisenhower was said to be definitely committed to leave Saturday evening for Washington and the "summit" conference is running far behind schedule. The foreign ministers of Britain, the United States, France and Russia went back into session this afternoon after a three-hour session this morning failed to complete final recommendations to the government heads on any of the three problems under discussion.

One informed source said Eisenhower's proposals were not specifically mentioned at the morning session. This meant Foreign Minister Molotov had given no official indication of the Russian reaction.

Some quarters saw a possibility that the Eisenhower proposals might get shunted aside, along with other proposals on disarmament, German unification and European security for discussion after the "summit" conference.

The leaders appeared to be aiming now primarily at setting up directives for the guidance of a foreign ministers' conference next October.

WORLD REACTION TO EISENHOWER PLAN

Faure's Plan Would Speed Disarmament

GENEVA (AP)—Premier Faure of France circulated a draft resolution today calling on the Big Four to launch a disarmament program under an effective United Nations control system.

French officials reported his resolution provides for reciprocal inspection of military installations inside the Big Four countries and for joint East-West inspection of arms and armies in certain areas of Europe.

The plan appeared designed to marry President Eisenhower's, Prime Minister Eden's and his own projects for halting the arms race.

Faure called for an agreed reduction of arms spending by the big powers, and investment of the funds thus saved in a combined project to raise living standards in the underdeveloped areas of the world. He also outlined a system of disarmament supervision through budget disclosures, subject to checking.

Burns to Continue
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld today announced a one-year extension in the term of Canada's Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns as chief of the United Nations truce supervision organization in Palestine.

Earlier in the day we had visited Lomonosov State University, said to be the tallest building in Europe. I could write pages about this centre of learning with its 21,500 students.

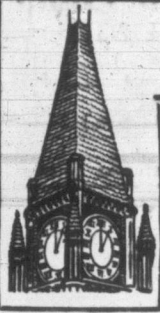

But a few facts are impressive enough. The English book on the University that was given us says:

"The Soviet country presented its young people with the new buildings on Lenin Hills on September 1, 1953. Every Soviet citizen enjoys the right to education. This is a major achievement of the government, legislatively embodied in the constitution."

Today, the number of pupils (Continued on Page 14)

Opposition Members Attack Seafarers' Union Leader

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

Tactics of a controversial labor leader who came to Canada to destroy the Communist-led Canadian Seamen's Union and stayed as head of another union have been attacked.

William Hamilton (PC-Montreal Notre-Dam-de-Grace), said Thursday that Harold Banks of Montreal, president of the Seafarers' International Union (TLU), is a labor racketeer who is trying to extend his control to government ships.

H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West) said Banks should be turned out of Canada. He added that there should be a government investigation of Banks' personal funds "in order to protect our seamen, the best interests of this country and the good name of organized labor."

Their criticisms were made during an all-day study of transport department estimates, which resumes today.

It was not the first time Banks' name has been before the Commons.

SERVED PRISON TERM

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC-Hamilton West), has asked in the last two sessions about the immigration department's admission of the U.S.-born Banks. He served a term in California's San Quentin prison in the 1930s for issuing a cheque without sufficient funds but was pardoned before his term expired. Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Herridge admitted that Banks was effective in the job for which he was sent to Canada—to rid the now-defunct CSU of Communist leadership. But they said he has held control of the SIU without proper union elections.

Mr. Hamilton said the SIU, through an agreement with the Association of Government Seafarers, Wharf and Yard Employees, is trying to get control of seamen on government ships. The government should protect the seamen from such an affiliation.

Transport Minister Marler interjected at one point that the government cannot dictate the union membership of employees. Policy was to let seamen belong to the union of their choice.

Mr. Herridge said Banks "should be told he is not welcome and had better clear out." "This is an importation from the United States of a type of labor racketeering that we have never had in this country."

$200,000 Airline Subsidy Blasted

The government was accused Thursday night of putting more than $200,000 of the taxpayers' money in the pockets of the owners of Queen Charlotte Airlines, which operates on the west coast.

The charge by John B. Hamilton (PC-York West) was promptly denied by Transport Minister Marler who said the money was expended in the last couple of years in the form of subsidies to ensure the line would continue its service to communities. Service would have been stopped if the financial assistance had not been granted.

Mr. Hamilton said he reached his conclusion as a result of a proposed deal whereby the airline would be acquired by Pacific Western Airlines.

He said Pacific Western is willing to pay $1,000,000 for Queen Charlotte's physical assets, which he estimated at $500,000. The spread was far too much, and could indicate only that Queen Charlotte's position at the time the subsidies were paid was not as serious as it was made out to be.

Mr. Marler said the spread would be reflected in higher rates and the line's users in British Columbia would "pay the piper."

Mr. Marler said Mr. Hamilton's conclusions were based on his own estimated figures. He said he doesn't know what the assets and purchase price are.

The air transport board a month ago had approved in principle the merger of the two lines through the purchase by Pacific Western of Queen Charlotte shares. However, no formal order had been issued by the board.

Captain Norman Ramsay, Trans-Canada Air Lines pilot who was fired after a crash near Malton, Ont., last December, has passed a medical examination for reinstatement. Transport Minister Marler said Thursday night.

Ramsay still must pass an instrument flight test before his licence can be restored. Marler said in answer to questions by Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre). The latter contended that fatigue, not negligence, was the cause of the crash shortly before Christmas. Ramsay and his co-pilot, Gary Anderson, were seriously hurt but no one was killed.

An Alberta physician said Thursday Canadian doctors are not a stumbling block to any plan of national health insurance.

However, Liberal Senator F. W. Gershaw of Medicine Hat told the Senate that the Canadian Medical Association is opposed to state medicine. It would be impossible to put doctors on salary with any degree of fairness.

He said the association for years has approved the principle of health insurance. Doctors were willing to co-operate in any fair plan that provided for improvements in standards of practice and that protected Canadians against the unpredictable high cost of medical care.

Senator Gershaw said experience gained in operation of the Trans-Canada Medical Plan, an accident-sickness insurance scheme sponsored by the association, shows that social security falls into two categories—social insurance and social assistance.

The plan has been accepted by Canadian doctors and now operated in all provinces. The organization collected premiums and paid for medical attention when it was required.

Why only TCP gets the full power from High Octane Gasoline

You might expect that all you need to get the full power out of a high compression engine is high octane gasoline. Actually you need more than just high octane—you need a gasoline with a special kind of additive.

That's because the way most of us drive most of the time—short trips here and there—creates a power-wasting problem that neither engine design nor highest octane gasoline can solve by themselves.

This problem is the increased build-up of certain deposits within the combustion chambers... the principal cause of power waste.

What happens is this:

As your engine warms up, these deposits warm up, too—glow red hot. And these glowing particles act like hot coals—ignite the gasoline mixture ahead of time... before the pistons reach proper firing position. This is called pre-firing and means that power works against you instead of for you.

In addition, these same deposits have another power-wasting effect: They foul spark plugs, causing your engine to miss.

Engineers will tell you there's nothing more wasteful of power and gasoline than pre-firing and spark plug "miss."

But there is an answer—there's one high octane gasoline that gives you all the advantages of high octane without the power-crippling effects of these deposits—Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP*.

TCP, the Shell-developed additive, fire-proofs the deposits so that they no longer cause pre-firing. No longer can they glow red hot and ignite the gasoline mixture. And TCP stops spark plug "miss," too. Your spark plugs do the job they are supposed to do.

Start getting the full power built into your engine. Get Shell Premium with TCP. It's the most powerful gasoline your car can use!

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

Only Shell Premium Gasoline has both TCP and High Octane!

Ottawa Cold On Vancouver Airport Sale

But Has Plans
For Development

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Marler indicated today the federal government no longer is interested in acquiring the civic-owned Vancouver airport on Sea Island.

He also told the Commons during debate on transport department estimates that he personally is sympathetic to arguments opposing establishment of an auxiliary airport for light planes at Spanish Banks, a beach in the University of British Columbia area.

Harold Winch (CCF, Vancouver East) asked Mr. Marler whether there have been any recent developments in the proposal to transfer the Vancouver airport from the city to the federal government.

Mr. Marler said the government offered to buy the airport but that the sale was rejected by taxpayers in a referendum. Since then the government had not pressed the city.

He said he does not think that it is material whether the airport is owned by the city or the federal government. It now is being operated by the city with great efficiency and he did not believe the federal government could do a better job. The city also is making money.

Mr. Marler said the government has long-term plans for development of the airport, but did not elaborate. This year the government would spend $500,000, mostly on improvements to runways and loading aprons.

He said several sites for a secondary airport for light aircraft are being considered by his department. He hoped to be able to make a report in the near future.

SHIP OF DESPAIR

Mazatlan Cruise Real Snafu

The ill-starred steamship Mazatlan, which was refitted in Victoria last April, is in trouble again, this time in Southern California waters.

Before coming to Victoria, the ship was picketed and declared "hot" by U.S. unions. On arrival here, she was picketed by the Seafarers' International Union until her owners agreed to employ SIU members in the crew.

Today the Associated Press reports from San Pedro Mazatlan is in drydock after a 30-day cruise that started as a luxury trip and ended with passengers subsisting on pancakes and rations from lifeboats.

There were 172 passengers at the start of the trip but only three rode out the voyage on the 375-foot vessel. The others found alternate ways to get home.

She apparently wasn't meant to ply the Pacific waters along warm Baja California, Mexico, anyway. Christened the St. Alaska, the ship had been in service on the B.C. and Alaska coast for about 30 years.

As the Mazatlan, her troubles began shortly after she left San Diego on the voyage to Acapulco. At one time she was helplessly adrift for 20 hours.

She was reported sunk. The propeller was bent when she ran over a buoy chain. The galley caught fire. Two other fires were started in mattresses of passengers.

On the Alaska run it was nice that staterooms were built close to boiler rooms to ward off wintry blasts. When the ship hit 120-degree heat off Baja, California, it was not so nice. And there was no air conditioning.

Virginia Snow, a newspaper-woman from Mexico City and one of the passengers who stuck with the ship until it reached here, told of the ship's troubles.

The Mazatlan was held in one Mexican port for six days until money was advanced from Los Angeles to pay repair bills. And even now the 102 men of the crew are living aboard the ship, unpaid and unhappy.

BOILERS BLEW
Entering the harbor of Acapulco, a Mexican pilot cut too close to the buoy and snarled the mooring chain in the ship's propeller. Repairs there were impossible so the ship's speed dropped to four knots and the resultant strain blew two boilers.

Miss Snow reports the menu dwindled to a steady diet of pancakes. On the last day emergency food kits in lifeboats were opened.

Water was at a premium and each passenger drew a glass of water instead of a shower. The crew kept the Mazatlan going until she was 350 miles from San Pedro harbor. Then a call went out for a tug.

The Case of Dr. McCann

AS MINISTER OF NATIONAL revenue Dr. McCann holds one of the most important portfolios in the national Government. All federal taxes, including the income tax, come under his supervision. His administration touches every purse and household in the nation.

It is essential, therefore, that the behaviour of a minister in this position should be above criticism, lest confidence in the tax system be undermined. Yet in three separate incidents of late Dr. McCann's behaviour has been brought into serious question.

The first incident involved certain campaign funds allegedly used by a provincial Conservative politician in Ontario. Dr. McCann revealed these matters, apparently to damage the prospects of this politician in the recent Ontario election. Such political manoeuvring hardly concerns Parliament, but Parliament was concerned, and rightly concerned, with another question. Had Dr. McCann received his information as a director of a great trust company or as minister of national revenue?

This question has not been answered, though it raised a question still more important—is it right for any minister of the Crown to be a director of a corporation which may have business with the Government?

That question has been answered by Prime Minister St. Laurent's statement that Dr. McCann resigned his trust company directorship a month ago.

A third incident arose when Time magazine reported the earlier argument in Parliament.

According to the Toronto press, Dr. McCann met the Ottawa correspondent of Time at a cocktail party in the home of the United States ambassador and vigorously condemned the magazine's report.

The question of manners—a cabinet minister wrangling with a journalist in the home of a foreign ambassador—is interesting but not important. The important point is that Dr. McCann is accused by the Time correspondent, according to the press, of threatening him and his publication with serious reprisals.

Dr. McCann, it is reported, said that he would exert pressure on the correspondent through the income tax system. It is to be hoped that no such threat was made for if it were made it would raise issues of the utmost gravity. It would mean that the Government, through one of its ministers, was attempting to intimidate a man by the use of information which, under the law, is secret and indeed sacred.

Dr. McCann, a minister with a long record of fine public service, owes it to himself, to the Government and to the public to explain what actually happened between him and the correspondent.

The minister has extricated himself from an impossible position by quitting the trust company's board, but he has other issues to face.

In the meantime, his resignation from the company does emphasize a principle that should be understood by all men in high public office. They should not be, or even appear to be, so connected that any suggestion of private interest can be implied in their public affairs. Nor should there be, or seem to be, any possibility of improper advantage to them privately from the public posts they hold.

Room for a Buttle Compromise

AS SUMMER VACATION TIME gives British Columbians and others a renewed appreciation of recreational assets on this Island, disturbing, though unofficial, reports are circulated on the Buttle Lake question.

Under recent authority granted for the Upper Campbell-Buttle Lake dam, and because of the nature of the work, it is possible that both first and second stages of the announced two-stage project may blend into one. In other words, while work is proceeding on the base dam to enlarge the Upper Campbell storage basin, ancillary work such as timber cutting, grubbing and general clean-up activities may proceed both in that region and also at Buttle.

If this occurs, then some of the scenic beauty of Buttle will be destroyed and the way will be paved to raise the water there well above previous highs without opponents of the scheme having a chance to record their objections on the basis of new circumstances.

Conservationists had expected an opportunity to present their cases in another review of the Buttle Lake question. They were justified in that expectation because different conditions have arisen since the earlier hearing. Those conditions include a change in schedule for the dams, establishing Upper Campbell Lake as a storage basin before Buttle, and the influence of the B.C. Electric cable from the mainland.

Speaking for conservationists, Mr. Roderick Haig-Brown sees no objection to raising the Upper Campbell level to an elevation of 695 feet (geodetic). Nor, he says, would there be any objection to a level slightly higher, provided it did not back water up in Buttle much beyond the 710 feet (geodetic) which is normal high.

If, however, the second dam built atop the first to hold Upper Campbell water forced the level up to 725 feet (geodetic) the new surface would be 10 to 15 feet above the normal shoreline and cause extreme damage to this major recreational asset of Vancouver Island.

The Incurable Addict

MR. HAROLD WINCH IS TO BE commended for his practical, if unpopular, approach to the problem of narcotic drugs.

He tells the House of Commons that many (he might truthfully have said virtually all) drug addicts are incurable and therefore should be supplied with drugs at cost instead of being forced to buy, at exorbitant prices, in the illegal market, which is the breeding ground of crime.

"If you ever wiped out the profit of those who push the drugs and stopped the illegal importation," Mr. Winch says, "you won't have a drug addiction problem in Canada."

This view is supported by the experience of other countries that have abandoned the futile and costly attempt to cure incurable addicts. It is also advocated by many leading Canadian doctors.

Mr. Paul Martin, minister of national health and welfare, rejects Mr. Winch's advice out of hand. He says his government will never supply drugs to addicts, though it is willing to help the provinces in their attempted cures.

Under the constitution such treatment, like all other health matters, is a provincial responsibility, but the Federal Government actually controls the use of narcotic drugs, since they are regulated by the Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act, an act of parliament.

Apparently, therefore, Canada will continue its present method of arresting all drug addicts when they are discovered, temporarily curing them in prison, letting them relapse into addiction when they are released and thus offering lucrative profits to the unspeakable vendors of human misery.

Our Changing World

Chips

BY DAVE BROCK

EVER since the Einstein-Russell declaration was published two weeks ago, people have been telling me in print and in talk that two such writers cannot err, one of them being a great philosopher and both of them being great scientists. The idea that a scientist cannot err is a new scientific theory to me. As for philosophers erring, just listen to them on the subject of each other.

According to any two philosophers, the first thing any third philosopher does every morning is to err, and he keeps doing it all day and maybe in his sleep as well. It is often said that an expert is a man who knows more and more about less and less. It should be added that an expert can make bigger mistakes than almost anyone else if only because nobody else is in a position to make them. Bigger and more fundamental ones.

IT WOULD be impudence, if not madness, for me to argue with these great men about the effects of thermodynamic weapons. But I can and do disagree with some of their guesswork about such things as human nature... human nature, and other things.

I SHALL be setting down a few of my objections in another place perhaps less frivolous than this column... and I can only assure you that I'll not be quibbling and joking while Rome burns, or gets ready to burn. All I will say here is that when Einstein and Russell declare we have a choice between total destruction and an earthly paradise, I think their standard of paradise is both optimistic and vulgar.

According to press dispatches purporting to be direct quotation, the authors said "Remember your humanity and forget the rest. If you do so, the way lies open to a new paradise." And again, "There lies before us, if we choose, continual progress in happiness, knowledge, and wisdom." This is a basic assumption unsupported by any facts. There is, indeed, a small but growing body of evidence that people are getting both sillier and unhappier, as well as more ignorant, and that they will continue to do so for a long time to come and perhaps for the duration of our present civilization, whether we have perpetual wars or perpetual peace.

THE decline and fall of the human brain might even be vastly speeded up by living in peace in a cockeyed scientific paradise. A paradise complete with perpetual entertainment, full and useless information, chemical foods, super-highways, constant interference, education that means "a drawing-out" of what has never been put in, subservience to machinery, and all the rest, including the breeding of enormous and lustful children who have finally mastered the art of being restless and lazy at the same time. A paradise completely lacking in grace in every sense of that very old-fashioned word. A paradise without a ripple... without a single hardship or challenge to engender the toughness man once had. No Pantheism, "which, as you know, is a certain jollity of mind pickled in the scum of fortune."

LACK of real hardships will not prevent grumbling. On the contrary, we are only starting to learn the art of beefing and bellyaching. We have barely scratched the surface. In the paradise of the future there will be a good many affable halfwits, going round minding other people's business with a maddening grin on their faces... they will have read, in some book or other about Positive Thought, that a good-natured grin entitles them to reorganize the community. But for the most part, people will be querulous, with a chronic feeling of having been gypped.

AND speaking of chronic conditions, I heard a rather fantastic radio sketch in which some children were being shown around a most alarming House of the Future. It was designed in an odd way, "because everybody in the House of the Future is sick." One of the children said "I thought Science was going to banish diseases." To which her guide replied "Oh, it's going to banish the old diseases all right. But you ought to see the new ones... wow!" The author tells me this sketch was meant as mere entertainment. But it seems to me that if one takes this word "diseases" in the larger sense, and not merely as a matter of microbes and such, then he has indicated one difficulty about promising anyone an earthly paradise. Not that the larger sense excludes the microbes. Anything but.

A pal in Montreal has sent me an advertisement for a septic tank. Only, in huge headlines, it is called a SCEPTIC TANK. My one is just like that too. Experts have pleaded with it in vain. It has the Negative Approach.

WHISPER WHO DARES

I SEE a British firm has invented silent chocolates for use in theatres. That is to say, the wrapping is silent. It refuses to rustle. Accordingly, the Philharmonic Society of Liverpool has lifted its ban on chocolate-eating at concerts. I should have thought that anyone with any sense would go without chocolates at a serious concert anyhow. And anyone with no sense would prefer his chocolates as loud as possible. However, I am out of touch with these things. I once invented some silent peanut brittle, for use in church and at funerals, but I forgot to patent it and I am now embittered and have become a recluse.

Eisenhower and Boldness

By JOSEPH ALSOP from Washington

IF ALL goes well, history will probably record the summit meeting at Geneva as the moment when President Eisenhower first strongly asserted his personal leadership in foreign policy-making. The question is, simply, whether the president will follow his own creative inclinations or will stick to the official administration line.

Until the very moment when the American delegation left for Geneva, the official approach to the summit meeting continued to be extremely negative—at least at every level below the White House level. Immense numbers of "position papers" were laboriously prepared. But essentially, the aim was to prevent anything awful happening at the summit, rather than to make something good happen there.

Most of the position papers took the form: "If the Soviets make move A concerning Germany, then we must make move B to secure a checkmate." Furthermore, the decision was taken to try to avoid talking about one of the two vast problems that are the real keys to any true international settlement, and to avoid taking any solid American position whatever on the other.

TWO TOP PROBLEMS

On any honest assessment, all European and all economic questions pale into perfect insignificance when compared with the question in the Far East and the question of disarmament. The Far East is the place where international communism is on the march today, and there can be no real world settlement until it is known where this onward march will be finally halted. Disarmament above all demands decisions about the absolute weapons; and there can be no end of the fear that haunts the world until the world knows what is to be done about the H-bomb.

Yet the aim of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and the other official policy-makers was not to discuss the Far Eastern question at Geneva if possible. In the preparatory meetings, the British and French were requested to co-operate in this policy of silence. They agreed, somewhat reluctantly, to do their best to keep the topic of the Far East out of the Geneva talks.

By the same token, for weeks before the president's departure for Geneva, the administration was riven by a first-class row about the right approach to the disarmament question. The Pentagon (which means the Joint Chiefs of Staff, for Secretary of Defence Charles E. Wilson has not interested himself in the matter) is undyingly opposed to a serious disarmament effort. The disarmament talks that have taken place to date have aroused no Pentagon opposition because they were thought to be meaningless. But the Pentagon is up in arms now, because serious disarmament talks seem to be a possibility.

STASSEN PLAN

On the other side of the battle, Harold Stassen, whom the president has charged with personal responsibility as the American disarmament policy-maker, fought long, hard and obstinately for permission to take his disarmament plan to Geneva as the American government's plan. It is a bold plan, although it is perhaps not sufficiently worked out in detail. At any rate, the State Department took the stand that Stassen's homework was not finished, and this tilted the balance against Stassen.

As a result, a British disarmament plan has been taken to Geneva and a Soviet plan; but no American plan has been taken there. It was even doubtful whether Stassen himself would be permitted to play a Geneva role. To his bitter chagrin, he was not included in the official delegation. He left for Paris as an "unofficial observer," with the question still open whether Paris would or would not be his final stopping place.

All sorts of indications have been seeping out of the White House, however, that this extremely negative approach by no means suits President Eisenhower's current mood. It is clear, in fact, that the president would like to talk turkey with the Soviets if the Soviet leaders show the slightest sign of wanting to talk turkey with him.

TALKING TURKEY

So far, the Soviets have shown all sorts of signs of wanting to talk turkey with Eisenhower. The inclusion of his friend, Marshal Zhukov, in their delegation is only one of these signs. Continual hints have been dropped in Moscow, in fact, about the extreme desirability of informal, man-to-man and private contact between the president and the Soviet chiefs.

Meanwhile, the president's inclination, to try to do business with the Russians has also been considerably strengthened by the report of Charles E. Sohlen. Sohlen has stated that the Russians really do want some sort of settlement or relaxation of tensions, not so much because of crippling inner weakness in the Russian system, but because the Soviet leaders have also looked down the dark perspective opened by the H-bomb, and have been terrified by what they saw there.

Altogether the chances are pretty good that the pettifogging position papers will be torn up; that the negative approach will be abandoned; and that the president will make a bold, honest and creative effort to find the beginning of a basis for agreement. If the president allows himself to be himself in this manner, the summit meeting will indeed become a great occasion, whatever its final result may be.

CANNOT SERVE TWO MASTERS

Noting another letter in a recent issue of the Times bearing the signature of (Rev.) D. C. O'Connell still pouring out vituperation on the Social Credit Party induces me to comment.

As an old-timer, I would doubt if he is on very good footing to get too interested in politics, ministering, as he may, to a congregation composed of various political groups, which could detract seriously from his prestige.

In that vocation, as a minister, one admonition is stressed that "one cannot serve two masters" and for him to use his influence along any other lines than his accepted calling is just wasting time, for him.

FREEMAN OF THE CITY

I have followed with interest the correspondence on the above subject and whilst I greatly admire Mr. Thomas for his dogged tenacity, I do think the award of Freeman is a little out of keeping with what was a commercial venture.

However, none of your correspondents have touched on one aspect. By what right did the mayor announce that he was going to put the proposal to the council and to announce it to the press? By all means, put it to the council and abide by the voting, but to let the public know in advance was to put the council in the position of offering public rebuff to Mr. Thomas if they did not approve the proposal.

Alderman Mooney was right to oppose the motion but he yielded only to save the City of Victoria from being placed in an inglorious position. Let us hope the mayor will guard his tongue more carefully in future (but I doubt very much that he will).

PROPHECY

An article, "Water from under the Sahara," tells of Professor Savornin declaring in 1927, that a vast subterranean lake flowed beneath the burning sands of the Sahara, which the Algerian government finally decided to investigate, and in 1937 struck an apparently inexhaustible source of water 1,500 feet below the surface of the desert.

In explaining the origin of the lake, and how he knew it was there, Professor Savornin said, "The first thing to understand is that the crust of our planet is alive, constantly changing. In the beginning—scientists were in agreement with each other and with the Book of Genesis on this point—the ocean enveloped the whole globe. In a series of mighty convulsions continents were thrown up. Each epoch had its distinctive geography, its peculiar vegetable and animal world of which clear traces may still be found. In the Albian Age, while much of Europe and Africa was under water, the Sahara was a great open-air fresh water lake stocked with fish and reptiles—fossils of which have been discovered in the sands along with petrified remains of pine trees—but as the face of the planet altered with new mountains and plateaus rising above the oceans, the Albian lake vanished beneath massive deposits of solid matter, which is like a lid preventing evaporation, and having no outlet to the sea, and being constantly replenished by melting snows, rivers, and rainwater from the Atlas Mountains this Albian subterranean lake is an inexhaustible reservoir which it would be beyond the power of man to drain wholly—and already in 1947 work had begun on 200 oases on a strip of barren desert 200 miles long by 6 broad in mid Sahara.

Another article tells how Egypt planned to irrigate from below, from a Subterranean Nile. Israel also.

Thus science again upholds the fact of the evolution of God's creative plan and gives proof of the divine inspiration of the Bible which foretold this very thing in Isaiah 35 which says, "Strengthen the weak hands and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them of fearful heart Be strong. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened and the ears of the deaf unstopped—the lame man leap as an hart and the tongue of the dumb sing, for in the wilderness shall waters break forth and streams in the desert—And an highway shall be there—the way-faring men shall not err therein."

The increase of knowledge foretold in Daniel 12:4 which was to mark the end of the old era and beginning of the new, has already made great progress in healing, possible, and atomic energy, itself a product of this promised increase of knowledge, is yet to be used for this purpose. It is up to man to use it right.

SO MUCH FOR SO LITTLE

I wonder how many Victorians are aware of the fine, well-operated, well-supervised boys' camp being operated by our Y.M.C.A. at Glinz Lake.

My nine-year-old has just returned from his week at camp and his glowing praise of the outdoor life has prompted this letter.

Despite the fact it was his first taste of away-from-home life he returned with no mention of homesickness and brim full of experiences. He enjoyed all the wonderful experience of outdoor life with just enough discipline to make him appreciate the difficulties of operating a well-run camp.

To his parents it is a source of amazement the Y can offer so much for so little.

In the words of my boy "How long can I go for next year, Dad?"

AN APPRECIATIVE PARENT.

LET'S LOOSEN UP

Would you be so kind as to publish following article re the Bert Thomas Fund?

I am a Victorian, and like it very much. There is no better city in my estimation, but I just don't understand the people of Victoria being so lax in contributing to the fund. There are so many people here who could well afford large sums of money. After all, Florence Chadwick received $10,000 for not making the swim. Bert tried several times without success, and never received a cent, but finally he did make it, and what a wonderful thing for Victoria, B.C.

What are we really doing for Bert financially? I am very disappointed in Victorians. Let us loosen up.

SUBSCRIBER.

Tide That Doesn't Lead to Fortune

THE beachcombers around our way are saying, in the ungrammatical idiom of the district, that the tides ain't delivering the type of lumber they used to.

A man who wants a 10-foot two-by-four can walk clear from Ross Bay to Rescuer without finding the stick he needs. And when it comes to planks, which he once picked over at the water's edge to be sure he had good material, why anything goes. A plank, any kind of plank, is a sort of whooping crane to the beachcomber these days. They're scarce and there's no opportunity to be fussy.

So the waterfront folk take what they get, but they're too independent to be thankful. The tides just aren't delivering the way they should. It's reached a point where a man has to buy lumber for his crude carpentry—and that, to a beachcomber, is a sort of sacrilege.

What's more, they say, the tides don't seem to be running the way they did. They're coming higher at the wrong time. Maybe the sweep of storms has changed the beach levels. Maybe some underwater disturbance, the result of a small quake, has altered the course of the currents. Whatever it is, there is a very considerable disapproval of the way they're behaving—a dissatisfaction with the movement of water which the old beachcombers saw as a variable with an underlying constant.

CROP THAT NEVER FAILS

But if the tides are acting differently and if they fail to deliver at the shore the type of timber a man wants, they're consistent in one feature. They're still bringing the garbage to the beaches in large supply.

You notice it more in summer when, hot from a day at the office, you go down for a plunge—not an attempt to swim the Strait or even an effort to attract attention, but a simple, cooling immersion in the stuff that never gets warm.

You can still do it. But quite frequently you have to go searching for a clear spot. You have no hankering to dive in and come up with a soggy cardboard milk carton perched on your head, a few shiny tins bobbing around, your ears and the accumulated gipsy of the garbage scow barring your return to shore.

Those of us who live by the water have had too much experience to be surprised by anything that drifts to the beach. But we've seen some remarkable things in the way of civic effort to make the stretches of sand and the adjoining sea attractive.

One year the city bulldozed the sand and it was useless for recreation until the storms of winter washed it clean and settled it again. Another time trucks with hoists came to the shore and lifted logs out of the way. You could have the wood for the price of cartage if you wanted it for your fires.

And, under a slightly more active civic regime, Victoria installed a garbage crusher which broke bottles and partly mangled empty cans so they'd sink.

DISCOURAGED?

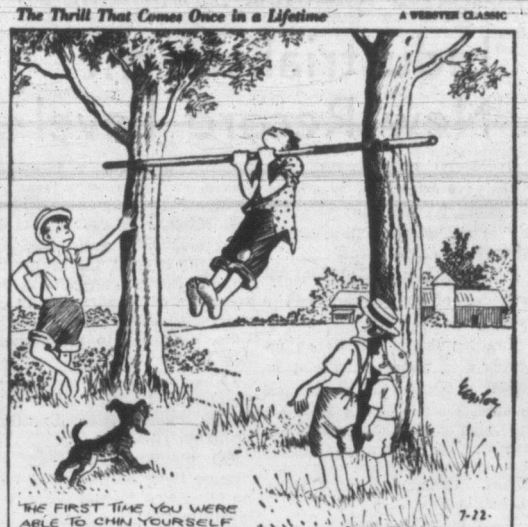

This year the crusher may be working efficiently, but there's been very little done to make the beaches attractive.

Out our way you can find enough sand on which to spread your blanket if you get down early. Otherwise you can choose the log you want to sit on—and there's lots of choice.

And if you want to swim, you don't always have to force your way out between the floating debris that a pretty inefficient tide brings in. But if you swim crawl, and gulp in breath when your head turns, you'll find there's not quite the flavor in a floating grapefruit rind that there is when the fruit is taken from the icebox to the table.

Still, maybe the waterfront folk shouldn't complain. Sure there's a certain amount of refuse washing in where we don't want it. But where should it be put? Certainly not far out in the Strait. We wouldn't want to interfere with any channel swimmers these days.

Anyway, the kids like picking over these marine dump heaps, and they can't be too unsanitary, can they, after all that washing?

BUCK-PASSING CHARGED IN VANCOUVER FLUORIDATION

VANCOUVER (CP)—Commissioner Theo Berry told the Greater Vancouver water board Thursday federal health authorities would like citizens here to be test cases in a study of the effects of fluoridation on dental decay.

"But they won't take the responsibility of treating the supply and want to pass the buck to provincial authorities," he said.

Mr. Berry said medical authorities are quite convinced fluoridation reduces decay of children's teeth about 60 per cent.

"They haven't told us specifically its effect on the bodies of older persons except that, in their opinion, it's safe."

Vine Crops Require Help Even in These Warm Days

The ever hopeful gardener has received a boost this last week. Warmer days and nights have raised his spirits, and he again has visions of vine ripened to maturity, sweet juicy cobs of corn and plentiful tender squash.

These warm weather vegetables have been slow in growth this year. It has been noticeable the amount of difference a few degrees lower average temperature have made.

There is apparently an average minimum below which these plants make little progress.

Now that the soil has become warmer, and the roots more active there are a few aids we can give to these crops.

A balanced general fertilizer made into a solution of the recommended strength (one teaspoon to a gallon) and given liberally to each plant will provide food in a quickly available form.

Thereafter, gentle loosening of the top soil around the plants will admit warmth and air. Do not mulch these particular crops. It has been found that mulches lower the soil temperature in summer by a few degrees, and these warm weather plants need high soil temperatures.

They do however need regular water supplies while making growth and fruit. Alternate drought and deluge will cause checks resulting in poor fruiting.

Given even half a break in the way of continuing warm weather, local gardeners still will have some mighty fine produce to enter as exhibits in the fall shows, and to delight the palates of discriminating families.

While warm weather vegetables and perennials have been slow, it is interesting to note two desert yuccas in bloom outdoors, one with a spike of flowers over seven feet tall!

Ban on Nuclear Test Explosions Urged by World's Top Doctors

LONDON (Reuters) — Doctors from nine countries, members of an international commission set up to investigate the medical and biological effects of atomic explosions, have called for a ban on atomic and hydrogen explosions.

The call is made in a preliminary report published in The Lancet, one of Britain's leading medical journals.

The commission met in Tokyo, Osaka, Hiroshima and Nagasaki in Japan. The doctors came from Britain, South Africa, France, West Germany, Chile, Russia, China, Belgium and Czechoslovakia.

The report says:

"We consider that the persistence of radioactive contamination of the sea, rain and atmosphere is the most important feature of experimental H-bomb explosions, for we are afraid that the cumulative effects of increased irradiation over widespread areas may result in unfavorable genetic changes among the populations of those areas."

The doctors interrogated many survivors of atomic bomb explosions in Japan, and comment in the report:

"Those who survived commonly suffered, or suffer, from various after-effects, and many cases of blood disease terminating fatally have already occurred among them.

"Pregnant women frequently miscarried and some children who were exposed have been retarded mentally and physically."

Children See Mother Slain Outside Home

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Police today swore out a murder warrant for the arrest of Hilton Campbell, 20-year-old district farmer, in the death Thursday of Mrs. Bernice Azulay, 22, shot as she stood with her two children outside her home.

Mrs. Azulay was found dead by her husband, Wilfred, 30, who was called from work in a nearby quarry by his young son.

The boy, Azulay, told police, rushed up to him crying "Daddy, he shot her."

Another son, 2, was found sitting beside the woman's body. The elder son told police the man who shot his mother had fled in a truck.

Police said the husband told them his wife had recently come back to him after living in Toronto with another man. He said the man had been bothering her after her return.

Measuring Metabolic Rate

People keep asking me what is basal metabolism; what is the test for it, and what does it show? By metabolism we doctors mean the chemistry of the body, but in actual practice, we measure only the rate of use of one substance—oxygen.

To perform the test, a person who is fasting in the morning, and has been lying down quietly for half an hour, so as to get into a basic condition, is made to breathe oxygen. The girl measures the amount of oxygen that the patient uses in a certain period of time. This amount is then compared with the amount that that person, with his or her particular height and weight and age should use; and the difference is expressed as a percentage of the calculated normal. For instance, a person may be found to be using 15 per cent too little oxygen, or he may be using 20 per cent too much. Experts feel that any figure that is between perhaps plus 5 and minus 20 per cent of the calculated normal is likely to be within the range of normal, and not indicative of any disease.

I seldom order a test of basal metabolic rate because, after years of experience, I just reach over and touch the patient's hand. If her skin is cool, if her pulse rate is normal, if the woman (the patient is usually a woman) has not been fidgeting around in my office and blinking her eyes rapidly, or if she is not perspiring much, or has not been eating much and losing weight, or has been sleeping well; and if she does not feel that the room is too warm, I can be fairly certain that she is not hyperthyroid (with too great an activity of the thyroid gland). Also, if the woman is wide-awake, if she moves quickly, if she answers my questions quickly, if her face is mobile, and her features animated, if she is intelligent, and especially if she is handling an important job like that of secretary to a big man, I am satisfied that she cannot be significantly hypothyroid (with too little thyroid activity). If she were badly hypothyroid she would probably be fat and pudgy; she would feel cold, she would have lost her sex interest, and she might go to sleep and snore in my waiting room.

ASSESSES THYROID GLAND
People ask, "But what is the use of a basal metabolism test?" Unfortunately, some persons have the idea that in some magic way it will tell whether all of a person's glands or internal secretion are normal. Actually, about all it does is to give the physician an idea of how the thyroid gland is functioning. The thyroid gland is something like the two metal balls that spin around on top of an old-fashioned steam engine. They regulate the speed at which the engine runs.

Similarly, in the body, if too much thyroid substance is made, the body chemistry will run too fast, and, as a result, the patient will be restless and jittery, and will feel warm. At night she will kick off the bedclothes. On the other hand, if the thyroid gland is not producing enough thyroid substance, the person's body chemistry will slow down; the hair will become brittle and dry; the skin may be cold and dry, and the woman may feel stupid; she may say she has trouble thinking and her mind "is fuzzy."

Today, in certain cases, when after two or three tests of basal metabolism there still is doubt in the mind of the physician, he can use other tests which are sometimes more reliable. He may use a test in which the amount of so-called bound iodine is measured in the blood, or he may give some radio-active iodine, and then measure the speed with which it is taken up by the thyroid gland.

EXOPHTHALMIC GOITER

Some persons become hyperthyroid when they have a little tumor in the thyroid gland, or in other words, a small goiter, which produces too much thyroid substance. In other cases the person has what is called exophthalmic goiter, in which case the eyes bulge forward. Sometimes, when a goiter is removed surgically, and too little thyroid substance is left, the person will go into a state of marked hypothyroidism called myxedema. Then she has to be given thyroid substance for the rest of her days.

I keep seeing persons who, because of one reading of basal metabolism reported as minus 12 per cent or so, were put on a fairly heavy dosage of thyroid substance. I doubt the wisdom of this. Most physicians look on minus 12 as normal. Furthermore, the fact that the medicine soon produces a feeling of jitteriness shows that the person did not need thyroid substance. Because of this the extra amount she is getting is doing only harm.

There are some women who, when infertile and unable to conceive, are found to have a somewhat lowered basal metabolic rate. Sometimes, then, on taking thyroid substance they can become pregnant.

One of the most important points we physicians sometimes forget is that often we should not base a diagnosis on only one laboratory report. The patient may not have breathed regularly; she may have been full of fear; or the technician's calculations may have been wrong. Always, when in doubt I have the test repeated. Because I am not infallible. I do not expect every laboratory girl to be infallible.

Two Cabinet Ministers Reveal Directorships

Posts in Family-Owned Firms Still Held by Prudham, Marler

OTTAWA (CP)—Two cabinet members, Mines Minister Prudham and Transport Minister Marler, are still directors of companies, both of which are family-owned corporations.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) asked in the Commons today whether any other cabinet members are company directors in view of the announcement Wednesday that Revenue Minister McCann resigned June 20 as a director of Guaranty Trust Co.

Prime Minister St. Laurent replied that he has made no special investigation but thinks that one minister is connected with a family firm created before the minister entered the cabinet.

Later, Mr. Prudham and Mr. Marler told a reporter they still are directors of companies. The mines minister is president and director of Prudham Building Supplies Ltd. of Edmonton. The transport minister, as executor of the will of a relative, is director of Hutchins Investment Corp. of Montreal, a family-owned investment company.

Mr. Prudham said his company is a small one with only three shareholders, one of whom is his wife. He said he sold a construction company he owned before entering the cabinet in 1950.

IWA Sponsors Ladysmith Contest Entry

LADYSMITH—Latest entry in the "Miss Ladysmith" contest to choose a candidate for the "Miss PNE" title in Vancouver is Sylvia Heys, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Heys.

Honored Queen of Bethel No. 13, International Order of Job's Daughters, Ladysmith, she is sponsored by Ladysmith sub-local of Local 180, IWA. She will enter Grade 12 in the fall, and hopes to study for a teaching career at UBC.

Eagles' Auxiliary, sponsor of the contest here, has announced that "Miss PNE" will be given the additional title of "Miss B.C. Lions," in honor of Vancouver's professional football team.

Major Canadian football clubs will promote candidates who will compete for the right to reign over Grey Cup activities. The local contest, in which five girls are entered to date, will be decided at a dance here Aug. 6 in the Agricultural Hall.

Crude Stone Altar Found In Cave on Gulf Island

NANAIMO—A primitive altar set in a huge cavern deep in the heart of an unidentified Gulf island has been found by a party of six Nanaimo men.

"We don't want sacred places over-run by curiosity seekers," said Stan Kendall, leader of the party, as he described the find.

Working their way into a deep cleft in a cliff, they finally emerged in a cavern 200 yards long, 20 to 30 yards wide, and with a ceiling from 70 to 80 feet high.

PAINTED FACE

In its centre stood a slab of rock six feet long and three feet wide, smooth on the top and sides, and covered with a light layer of moss and cedar bark. A two-inch band of red ochre was painted around the top edge, and a crude face was painted on one side.

"It looks like an altar, but as far as I know the Indians

Port Alberni Officer Joins Peace Team

PORT ALBERNI—Major Stuart G. Wright, Canadian Scottish Regiment officer and local school teacher, is on his way to Saigon, French Indo-China, as a replacement officer on the Canadian team serving the peace settlement commission.

He was promoted to his present rank prior to taking up his duties. While in Indo-China he will serve with Polish and Indian representatives on a three-man team.

Industrial arts instructor at Alberni District High School, he has been a leader of the militia movement here and active in the city's army cadet corps.

He has been given a one-year leave of absence by the school board. His outward journey will take him through Ottawa, the Azores, Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, Delhi and Calcutta, and he will return via Hong Kong and Tokyo.

around here didn't offer sacrifices on altars," said Abe Crocker of Gabriola island, long-time student of Indian lore and customs. "It could conceivably be that in this cavern some 'singers' ceremonies were carried out."

He based his theory of the singers on discovery of a five-foot cedar staff, split for half its length and apparently used to beat out the tempo of songs and dances.

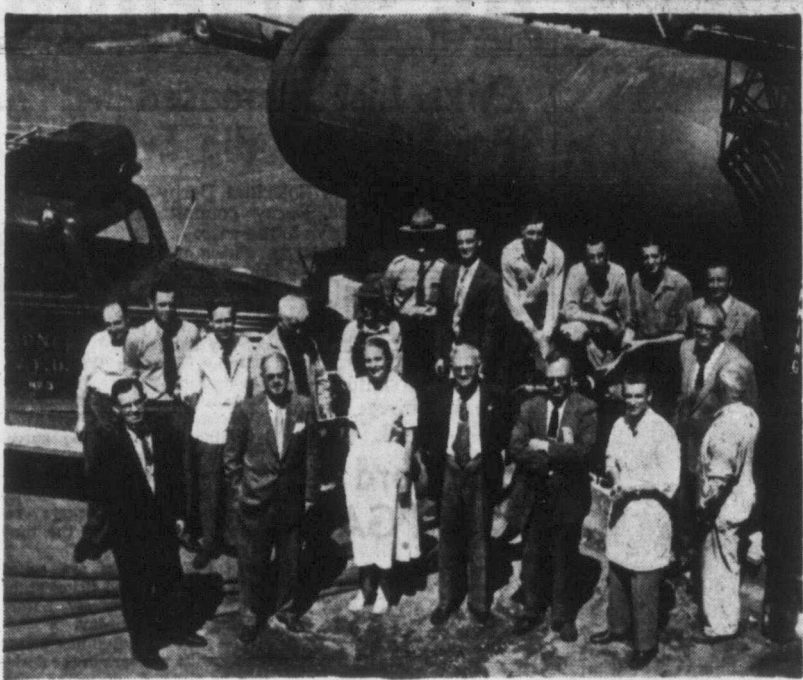

They estimated the cavern to be 400 feet under the peak of the mountain on the island.

Petroglyphs south of the city antedate settlement of Indians on the Pacific coast, and it is believed the "altar" stone also might belong to the pre-Indian period.

Others in the party with Mr. Kendall and Mr. Crocker were Hugh Heath, Herman Pahl, Alan Bohle, and Jim Hume.

$45,000 Renovation Program Nearing End at Rest Haven

SIDNEY—A $45,000 improvement program at Rest Haven Hospital is nearing completion. An automatic sprinkler system for fire protection has been installed, and a new boiler has been fitted in the modernized boiler room.

The laundry building has been renovated, new shelves built, and new equipment added. Peeling equipment, refrigerators, and an ice machine have been added to the kitchen, and additional storage space has been acquired. With a new light delivery truck now in use, the hospital ambulance will be used exclusively for emergencies.

A. George Rodgers, administrator, said it will be available to take patients to the hospital of their choice, and not solely to Rest Haven.

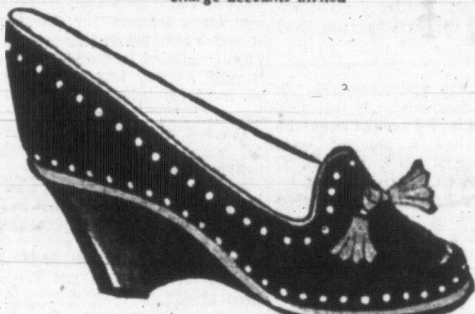

Capacity of the hospital at present is 68 patients, including the infants' ward, but this can be increased to 120 in an emergency. Dr. Raymond O. West is medical director.

Staff reached a high of 80 members earlier in the year, when a record number of 60 patients were being treated. Funds for the program were provided by the Seventh-Day Adventist church.

Driver's Test Journey Ends Before Judge

NANAIMO—A Cedar district girl who had hoped to take a driver's test here landed in police court instead.

Edna John had borrowed her brother's car for the test, but had a collision with a parked car on Haliburton Street. Although spoken to by the owner, she failed to stop.

The car she was driving later went into a ditch south of Chase River, and when police arrived they found Miss John unconscious and her companion, Oscar Thomas, intoxicated.

She was fined $75 and costs when found guilty of impaired driving, and $25 and costs for driving without a licence.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts said he imposed a lighter fine on the impaired driving charge rather than the customary levy of $150 in order not to work a hardship on the girl's family.

Thomas was fined $10 and costs when charged with intoxication.

Tee Topics

By BILL WALKER

Well, the gals made it, but what about the men?

Two city golfers are on the B.C. ladies team (as we suggested) with a third missing a berth by one paltry stroke.

That's the narrow margin, we've been told, that cost Shirley Naysmith her place on the provincial team for the Canadian championships at Royal Colwood beginning Aug. 4.

Shirley was that close, and it's rather unfortunate, because by any yardstick she seemed to be as logical a choice as any.

But there are no complaints—rules being rules, and Marg Todd and Dot Herberston being the city's honored qualifiers who fully deserve their place. It was Mrs. Buchanan of Vancouver who kept Shirley off the team.

Their Show Now

But now it's do or quit beefing for the men. The B.C. Closed tournament of 54 holes goes at Victoria Club Saturday and Sunday with the Willingdon Cup team make-up to be determined immediately thereafter.

Vancouver scribes have been doing their utmost to keep Victorians on the Island. Now it's up to at least one Victorian to prove he belongs.

So let's face it. Bob Fleming's selection depends on a hot score here. Nothing else has done this year warrants him consideration.

Bill McColl could earn a berth, too, but only with a sub-par showing. His tendency to soar at times has hurt his chances despite victories in the Island Open, Cowichan Open and the Mid-Island tournament.

What About Kerr?

In the weeds, so to speak, is the fellow who could take it all—Laurie Kerr. City champ this year, Laurie's medal total for the season is only a whisker behind that of McColl. Fleming's B.C. Open showing dropped him to third in the Island list.

Few have mentioned Kerr, but if you want your pick right now, we'll take the Colwood ace. He's been more consistent through the season and the selection committee should be well advised to consider his record.

The Vancouver entry will be small with names like Lyle Crawford, junior champ Bryan Copp, Gordon McKenzie, Johnny Russell and Jack Ellis heading the list.

Among the missing will be Doug Bajus and Bob Kidd, apparently secure in the thought they have done enough already to earn a ticket to Calgary and the Canadian amateur.

Thirty-six holes will be played Saturday and 18 on Sunday.

For a longshot pick we'll nominate George Andrews. (And wouldn't that throw everyone into a tizzy?)

But don't forget Eric Hiberson, he's tossed his hat into the ring and better-than-fair pitcher he is, especially at Oak Bay.

Hugh Morrison No. 10. Hugh has taken up house building as a sideline. Which reminds us that John Merriman has cancelled his Gorge membership for the summer in favor of domestic issues.

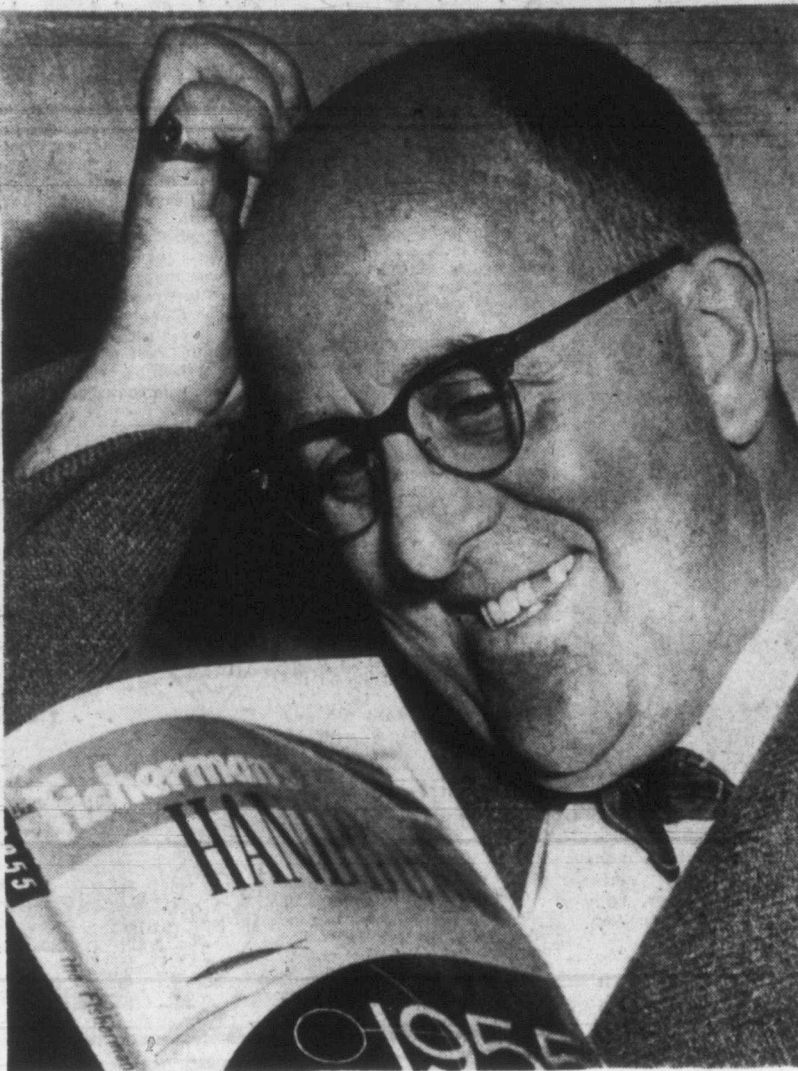

Incidentally that exhibition match proposed here last week between Marlene Stewart and Marg Todd, Dot Herberston or Shirley Naysmith and two city pros, has impressed the local C.L.G.U. committee for the Canadian tourney. Marlene being willing, Aug. 7 will be the date at Colwood.

City junior golf buttons changed hands last week, Doug Munro and Cliff Horwood of Victoria club trimming the defenders, Mike Kolb and Bob Brousseau of Colwood... summer school is a fine thing, but golf is important, too—maybe that's why Ruth Wilson of Vancouver has been at Colwood lately.

Ruth is getting a big jump on the field for the Canadian, practicing almost daily. She was runner-up to Dot Herberston in the B.C. meet last year... A scratch handicap entry for the Canadian Open here is Sheila Anne Downey of Baltimore.

Assistant pro Laurie Carroll of Victoria Club spent more than a dollar or two at the Gorge hole-in-one carnival trying for a hole-in-one, but he came closer on his home course, missing an ace by less than an inch on the Haroldi Pretty.

City gals are reminded that entries for the Canadian tourney close this Saturday.

Oaks Interested

In Vancouver Move

VANCOUVER (CP)—A special city council committee Thursday prepared a tentative agreement to lease Capilano Stadium here to an unidentified Pacific Coast League baseball club.

Local promoter Coleman E. Hall Monday assured council the club would come here if there is agreement on the stadium.

In Oakland, Calif., Tuesday, Brick Laws, president of Oakland Oaks, said he would be interested in transferring the club's franchise to Vancouver.

Same Sad Story—Services Lose by One

Arrows 4, Services 3

Luck continued to turn against United Services, last place tenants in the Senior A Men's Softball League Thursday night at Central Park.

Unable to bunch their nits in any semblance of a productive inning, Services lost another in a long string of close decisions when they were edged 4-3, by Arrow Furniture.

Arrows took advantage of Services' lack of punch to move within four points of league-leading Cec Fletchers and six points ahead of third-place Victoria City.

Durable Archie Sluggett doled out five hits to the Service squad as he marked up his seventh win of the season against a single defeat. Joe Lesparance also was nipped for five hits over the distance in taking the loss.

Arrows capped a 2-0 lead in the first inning without benefit of a base hit and scored another run in the bottom of the third to match Services' third-inning run.

Services picked up a single tally in the top of the seventh when Arrow infielder Norm Dickie threw wildly to first base but Arrows bounced back and matched the run with a singleton of their own in the bottom of the seventh to go ahead, 4-2.

Jack McCormick powered a triple to right field in Services' half of the ninth and scored on a sacrifice fly but Sluggett ended the brief rally to protect his one-run lead.

Tonight at 6.45, Fletchers meet Victoria City at Central Park.

Line-score follows:

United Services	001 000 001—3 5 3
Arrow Furniture	201 000 100—4 5 5
Lesparance and Sluggett	14 1 0 25

$$$$$ Goal Within Sight As Solarium Day Nears

Prize List Increased For Sunday's Big Event

The Anglers-Times Solarium Derby passed the last eighth pole today and Derby committeemen began a ticket-selling stretch drive to the wire.

Firing of a bomb at 6 Sunday morning will send dozens of boats scurrying out to the favored "hot-spots" for the salmon that will win prizes in the big one-day fish-fest.

Derby chairman Wes Fulton, hoping for a new record in proceeds turned over to the Queen Alexandra Solarium, urged a last-minute ticket-selling spree.

"We're getting close to our objective," Fulton said, "but we won't go over the top unless everyone's selling tickets—redoubles his efforts in the time remaining."

All ticket sellers are asked to turn in cash and ticket stubs to Wilson & Lenfesty before closing time Saturday.

The galaxy of stunning prizes that awaits winners in the derby will be shipped out to the presentation platform at Brentwood Anchorage for Sunday's ceremonies, which will begin at 5.15. Radio station CIVI, with Ted Reynolds handling the mike, will broadcast the presentation at 8.15 Sunday night.

Channel swimmer Bert Thomas is scheduled to be on hand to throw in his weight behind the venture.

NO EAGER BEAVERS
Patrol boats will police the inlet Sunday morning to see that no eager angler jumps the gun before official starting time. Patrol boats will bear official flags.

All fish entered for prizes must be at one of the weighing stations before 4 p.m.

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association rules will apply. Hand and leaded-lines prohibited and rods must be six feet or more in length. Anglers are permitted to use only one rod.

MORE PRIZES
The big prize list, which will be on a selective basis of awarding, was swelled this week by the addition of a mantel radio, Mixmaster, table lamp and sports shirt. The complete prize list will be published in Saturday's Times.

Winners will have their choice of the prizes in order of the weight-standings of their fish.

FIELD SLICED

After Thursday's second qualifying round, the field was cut to 64 players, including defending champion Chick Harbert, for the start of match play today. Harbert, who wasn't required to qualify, played through anyway and shot rounds of 71-68-139 over his "home" course.

Players with 36-hole scores of 147 went into a playoff for the last qualifying places.

Ball, a Welsh-born player whose distant cousin John won eight British amateur and one British open titles, had rounds of 68-63-137. Middlecote made it with 69-68 including an eagle two and Rieglief 67-70.

England's Bowlers Stop South Africa
LEEDS, England (Reuters)—England dismissed South Africa for 171 and then lost two first-innings wickets for 25 runs on the opening day of the fourth test cricket match here Thursday.

But the South Africans, trailing 2-1 in the five-game series, were still well in the fight at the end of the day.

After winning the toss, they lost half their side for only 38 runs, and seven wickets were down for 98. Then came a fighting eighth wicket stand of 56 between Russell Endean and Hugh Tayfield to improve South Africa's position.

South Africa was all out shortly after tea, the innings lasting just under four hours, 45 minutes. In the remaining 80 minutes, they captured the wickets of England's new opening pair, Trevor Bailey (9) and Frank Lawson (5).

Pace bowler Peter Loader, who replaced the injured Frank Tyson, varied his pace cleverly to take four wickets for 52. Fast bowler Brian Statham claimed three wickets and conceded only 35 runs in 20 overs.

Western Injured
NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants Thursday lost the services of catcher Wes Westrum for two weeks when the 32-year-old backstop suffered a fractured ring finger on his right hand. He was hit by a foul tip off the bat of outfielder Wally Moon of St. Louis Cardinals in the second inning.

Timbermen Run Streak to 12

NANAIMO 13, New Westminster 11
NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Nanaimo Timbermen came from behind in the fourth quarter here Thursday night to beat New Westminster Salmonbellies, 13-11, and chalk up their 12th straight Inter-city Lacrosse League victory.

The win put Timbermen back in sole possession of the league lead, two points ahead of Victoria Shamrocks, when they meet Saturday night at Nanaimo.

Trailing 4-1 at the first break, 8-7 at the half and 9-8 after three periods, Timbermen outscored the home team 5-2 in the fourth quarter.

Jim McNulty padded his lead in the league scoring race as he sparked the Nanaimo attack with four goals and one assist.

Derry Davies also picked up five points, with two goals and three assists.

Spud Morelli contributed three goals and one assist.

New Westminster's Cliff Sepka maintained his hold on second place in the league scoring with one goal and three assists, while Ivan Stewart counted three goals and Bill Jobb two.

Slow to get going, the Timbermen were held together in the first period by the spectacular performance of substitute goalkeeper Alf Shuker, who stopped 14 shots in the first period and 31 over the route.

Shuker, filling in for Fred Fulla, who arrived late for the game, played so well in the first half that coach Arnie Dugan left him in the net for the full game.

He will meet James Hunter of Vancouver Heights for this honor in the final at Terminal greens after having beaten Jimmy McNeill of the Vancouver Lawn Bowling and Country Club 21-18 in one of the semi-finals Thursday night.

George Casway of Vancouver Heights is the new Novice Singles champion, after beating Joe Crawford of Nanaimo 15-16 in the final. Johnny Robertson of Nanaimo also skipped his rink to the Bowser (Open) final in the knockouts of that event during the day, and will play Walter Fowler's Burnaby squad in the final Saturday morning.

Oak Bay Residents Fight Apartment Plan

Prospect Place Petitioners Fear Spread Of Suites on Beach Drive; Planners Split

A spirited public hearing is expected in Oak Bay before passage of a proposed by-law to rezone the 1500 block Beach Drive for apartment purposes.

Date of the hearing will be set at the next meeting of the council.

Council Thursday night received a letter from Oak Bay town planning commission saying the recommendation to rezone came after a split vote.

A petition signed by O. Cox, 1525 Prospect Place, and six others, opposing the measure, also was received by council.

The original request for rezoning came from Clarence Moore and Capt. Vernon Jackson. Area in question is bounded by Broom Road, Beach Drive, Oak Bay Avenue and Prospect Place.

The petitioners who oppose the change state that if the property is rezoned "... it could be the thin edge of the wedge and in no time other adjacent properties could be acquired and we would be surrounded by apartment houses."

"Trade vehicles, garbage carriers, fuel deliveries and other suppliers ... would certainly interfere with safety and enjoyment of those using Prospect Place daily."

A new apartment block is proposed for 2242 Cadboro Bay Road and the adjoining properties.

E. D. Liersch was granted permission to move a house at that address to the lot behind, fronting on Bowker. This would make room for an apartment which would replace it and overlap adjacent lots.

T. Fox-Decent, 2551 Florence, who had been waging a one-man fight with council for water charges on a flat rate and annual billing, wrote again to list practices of other Canadian cities.

Montreal, he said, makes the water charge once a year and so does Vancouver. Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver have a flat rate. Council received and filed the letter.

Saanich-Oak Bay drainage plan for Four Bay Road was given final approval.

Saanich will bear $9,500 and Oak Bay $5,890 of the $15,390 job.

Oak Bay endorsed the action taken earlier by Victoria and Esquimalt in naming J. G. Robinson, C.A. 3430 Uplands, to serve as arbitrator in a cost-sharing disagreement among Greater Victoria municipalities in connection with a proposed new wing for Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Bert Thomas, Ann Meraw In CNE Swim

TORONTO (CP) — Fifteen swimmers have agreed to enter the Canadian National Exhibition's swim across Lake Ontario in September. George Duthie, sports manager of the CNE, said Thursday.

The first five finishers will share the $25,000 prize money, Duthie said.

Among applications received are those of Shirley Campbell of Fergus, Ont.; Bert Thomas of Tacoma, Wash., who became the first person to conquer the Strait of Juan de Fuca two weeks ago; Brenda Fisher from Grimsby, England; Cliff Lumsden of Toronto; Gerda Olson of Simcoe, Ont.; Mrs. Ann Meraw, a 36-year-old housewife from Vancouver; Tommy Pedler, 40-year-old native of Belleville, Ont.; and four long-distance swimmers from the Egyptian Army.

The first swimmer ashore on the Canadian side of the 32-mile distance will receive $15,000. There will be a bonus of $1,500 to the first woman to finish.

U.S. Alpinists Scale 12,972 Foot Mount Robson

Victorian to Lead Alpine Club Assault

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Two alpinists from the United States said Thursday they had climbed to the top of Mount Robson, highest peak in the Canadian Rockies.

Fred Ayers of Portland, Ore., and Dick Irvin of Phoenix, Ariz., said they reached the summit of the 12,972-foot mountain after a 16-hour climb from their final camp above the glacier level.

Climbing the east wall of the mountain, they became the third party to scale the rugged mountain by the route used by the first successful climbers in 1903.

Meanwhile, an advance party from the Alpine Club of Canada is making preparations for an assault on the same peak next week.

The entry is led by Major Rex Gibson of Victoria, president of the club. About 150 members will arrive at the base camp July 26 and remain until Aug. 6. Only the most experienced climbers will attempt to climb the peak.

'WHAT A CROWD' EXCLAIMS GRUBER

5,000 Enjoy Symphony at Butchart's

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

No wonder that Hans Gruber, on stepping to the microphone at Butchart's Gardens Thursday evening, exclaimed involuntarily:

"What a crowd!"

For this surely must have been the greatest thrill of many that have come to the 15-year-old Victoria Symphony Orchestra as a conservatively estimated audience of well over 5,000 poured into Butchart's Gardens for the final concert of the summer.

At intermission time they were still coming and a portion of the program was repeated for the benefit of the numerous late arrivals.

Even under these circumstances, however, traffic and parking was handled courteously and with a minimum of delay.

It has been said by at least one public official, and intimated frequently in significant ways, that Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen cares not a jot whether the symphony sinks or swims.

NEW RECORD

Last night's, and last week's record attendances, soaring in total well over the 10,000 mark—a record anywhere on the North American continent with the possible exception of Boston—give the lie direct to such notions.

No audience could be more typical of the average citizen. They came from all four quarters of Victoria, together with a hefty sprinkling of visitors from over the border. Groups of high school and university students, clustered together; dad, mom and the kids picnicked under the trees; that busy guy from the next office to yours held hands with his girl in the informal manner of the occasion.

Families of new Canadians were there, voicing enthusiasm in accented English; and right up in front at both concerts, a large group of sailors snapped pictures and applauded vigorously.

Naturally the serenely beautiful gardens, at the height of their summer opulence, provided the symphonic program with a setting that in itself was an irresistible attraction. But that does not minimize the fact that people went in such numbers to hear the orchestra.

BIG BUSINESS

So a double debt is owed to Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ross in providing these concerts for they have proved conclusively that the Victoria Symphony Orchestra can be big business for this city.

The program featured Canadian coloratura soprano Lesia Zubrack, who, it can be truthfully said, has everything: personal beauty, a delightful stage presence and a remarkable voice.

Miss Zubrack had caught a cold—en route, not in Victoria—which shaded her tonality a little at times and robbed some of her high notes of perfect clarity and freedom, but nevertheless it was a performance of distinction, revealing power as well as sweetness, flexibility, fine range, and a musicianship which was deep and sincere.

This musical and dramatic feeling was particularly in evidence in her performance of the Mad Scene from Donizetti's tionally well handled. The performance as a whole made one realize vividly what distances, and some limpid lyric moments. In the famous cadenza passage, where the prima donna's trills and ornate convolutions are matched note for note by the flute, Maurice Crawford, the orchestra's first flautist, revealed his quite exceptional virtuosity.

APT CHOICE

Gruber led the orchestra through a spirited and clean-cut performance of Dvorak's Slavonic Dance No. 18 and a muchappreciated arrangement of airs from "Oklahoma."

Major presentation was a particularly apt choice—Beethoven's "Pastorale" Symphony. Woodwinds and flute are much in evidence in this and were particularly lovely in last night's setting. Full rhythmic significance was obtained in the peasant dance movement, effectively contrasted with the preceding lyric moods and the following orchestral thunders and lightnings. This latter, the storm movement, was excep-

Paul Robeson Asked to Sing In Vancouver

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP)—Singer Paul Robeson will be invited to stage a concert in Vancouver, Harvey Murphy, regional director of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), said Thursday.

Mr. Murphy is here attending the annual convention of the Mine-Mill union, which was ousted from the Canadian Congress of Labor in 1949 for alleged Communist leadership.

Mr. Murphy said the invitation will be extended Sunday to Robeson at a union-sponsored rally in Peace Arch Park at the Canada-U.S. border near Blaine, Wash.

Robeson long has been identified with leftist causes.

However, at Ottawa, immigration director C. E. S. Smith said the department understands Robeson will not seek entry to Canada. He was granted permission by the U.S. earlier this week to travel to Canada but not to other countries.

120-Foot Tumble Down Cliff Gives Boy Broken Arm

TORONTO (CP)—A nine-year-old plunged 120 feet down suburban Scarborough bluffs Thursday and only suffered a broken arm.

Martyn Featherby was taken to hospital for treatment after police, firemen and nearby residents combined their efforts to rescue the boy. They strapped him to a toboggan and hauled him up the cliff.

"He was standing on some slippery clay at the edge of the cliff and he just went down," said Nigel Field, 8, who was playing with Martyn in a field at the bluff's edge.

RC Nuns Given Right To Join Trade Union

WINNIPEG (CP)—The question of whether nuns who work in a Roman Catholic hospital are full-fledged employees capable of being represented by a labor union was settled before the Manitoba labor board Thursday over the protests of the Retail Clerks International Union (AFL-TLC). The decision: they can.

The union was applying for certification at Flin Flon General Hospital. It argued that nuns lived under a vow of poverty which "in itself renders them unfit to be dues-paying members of a union."

The hospital disagreed and said the nuns were employees and must be included in calculations of whether the union had a majority sufficient for certification.

The hospital employs 41 persons, seven of them members of the Grey Nuns order. The union has signed 19 employees.

Crash Involving Baby Buggy Brings $40 Fine

A driver who struck a woman pedestrian wheeling a baby buggy along Carey Road on June 29 was fined $40 or five days in jail Thursday in Saanich police court when he pleaded guilty to a careless driving charge.

Fined was Louis Sherman, 321 Obed. Magistrate Henry C. Hall also suspended his license. Police said the woman suffered leg injuries. The baby was not injured, although it was knocked from the buggy.

AT STOP SIGN
The accident occurred after Sherman had driven out from a stop sign on Tillicum and was proceeding north on Carey.

Two other motorists—Fredrick Norman Wright, Sidney, and Charles P. Cornwell, 686 Cadillac, were each fined $35 or five days in jail when convicted on careless driving charges.

Both were involved in recent accidents. Cornwell was restricted to driving for business only for one month.

POLICEMAN'S TIE SAVES MAN'S LIFE

TORONTO (CP)—A policeman's necktie saved the life of a Toronto man Thursday after his right leg was torn off below the knee while he was riding his motorcycle.

Horst Winzel, 22, was riding along on a crowded street when he attempted to pass between a line of cars. He caught his leg on the bumper of a parked vehicle, ripping it off. He fell from his machine 50 feet away from the severed limb.

Constable Robert Axford ripped off his tie and used it as a tourniquet to stem the flow of blood.

by smashing a window in a door.

Once inside they broke six large windows by throwing beer bottles through them, threw lanterns and lamps into a nearby lake, pulled awnings down and threw chairs and benches into the lake.

A canoe was punctured, dishes were broken and linen torn and scattered among trees.

A door was smashed in a second and smaller cottage and a window broken in a third.

DUNCAN (CP)—Funeral services were held today for George Edward Fraser, 20-month-old boy who was drowned Monday.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fraser of Honeycomb Bay, died when he fell from a log boom into Cowichan Lake.

Saanich police Constable Les Ledson told court the teen-agers went to the private property at night and pushed their car through a padlocked gate to gain entry to the grounds.

Boy Studies Rights as Burglar

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—One Pasadena 14-year-old, instead of frittering his summer vacation away in idleness or play, devoted it to self education. He's been studying to be "the best crook in the business."

Police said he pulled 29 major burglaries and nearly 200 minor ones since school ended. They estimate the worth of his loot at nearly $3,000.

He went about it in scholarly fashion, according to juvenile officer Martin Stornie, who interviewed the lad after his arrest. Stornie tells this story:

"The boy obtained text books for his study from the public library. By stealing the books, of course. 'The book that helped me the most was 'Willie Sutton' (by a notorious bank robber),' the boy said. 'That was full of helpful hints. Like how to break a window without noise by putting a blanket over it.'"

Mount Robson, in B.C., is Canada's best known mountain but Mount Logan, in the Yukon, is nearly a mile and a half higher.

He also stole a copy of the state penal code, because "I wanted to know my rights as a burglar."

As part of his course the young gster robbed city hall offices at least six times, as well as homes and cash boxes in libraries, newspaper racks and soft drink vending machines.

How to feel air-borne in one easy session

Just be our guest at the wheel of a Buick
with Variable Pitch Dynaflo[®]
(AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION)

It's The Hardtop with Four Doors!

Another big reason for Buick's soaring sales is the 4-Door Riviera—the new hit in hardtops that's taking the country by storm. The "Convertible" look, with no center post—but with separate doors for rear-seat passengers. Shown here in the Special Series—also available in the high-powered CENTURY Series. Both now in volume production to insure prompt deliveries.

THE RIDE ALONE is enough to make you feel you're cloud-cruising when you're in a Buick.

Big soft-acting coil springs on all four wheels—a steady full-length torque-tube—the pillow-cushioning of low-pressure tubeless tires—and a long list of other great ride-engineering gems see to that.

But you're closer to flight travel than just in the way you ride when you're in the driver's seat of a new Buick. Variable Pitch Dynaflo sees to that.

For here you do what the pilot of a modern airliner does for quick take-off and climb, and for better gas mileage aloft—you vary the pitch of your driving propellers.

You do it quite simply—just by the way you press the gas pedal.

Press down in the normal way, and twenty propeller-like blades inside the Dynaflo unit hold at their high economy angle—to give you many more miles from every tankful of gas.

Press way down when the need arises—and you switch the pitch of those blades for high performance.

Instantly, you're off and away. Instantly, you're at full-power acceleration in a safety-surge of forward momentum that's thrilling beyond all previous motoring experience.

What more can we say—except come try it!

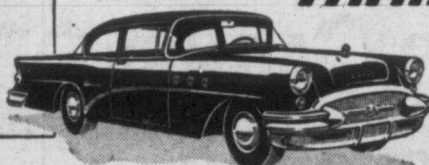

It's a new kind of spectacular action—yours with the might of Buick's record-powered V8 engines—and easily yours at great-buy prices that are sending Buick sales soaring to all-time best-seller highs.

Come in this week and be our guest at the wheel of the most sensational Buick ever!

*Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, optional at modest extra cost on other Series.

TAKE YOUR PICK FROM THE HOTTEST BUICK IN HISTORY

RETA MEYERS ON RUSSIA

In all kinds of educational establishments in the U.S.S.R. is near 60,000,000, almost one-third of the population.

Moscow University has 99% of its students there on scholarships, maintained as long as grades are held. This subsidized education provides living expenses on a modest scale as well as tuition so that any student, if he wants to work, can further his education along any line he wishes. The scholarships range from 250 roubles a month to 700 roubles. Under the stand, there are 12 faculties and the buildings cover 790 acres.

There are many statistics concerning this new centre with its 45,000 rooms. You are told that if a baby was born in one room and moved to another every day of its life it would be over 100 years before it got out. There are 112 elevators to serve this mammoth structure.

So that no sleepers will get into the university, and make it necessary for the Soviet to pay for their education for 100 years, age limit is 35 years.

Plenty of provision is made for recreation and culture, with a huge ski-lift almost at its front door that runs down to the Moscow river, where rowing crews do their training. Inside swimming pools, clubs, dance halls, all provide for recreation that bears out the title, "Palace of Learning." The university recently marked its 200th anniversary.

Incidentally, this is a good place to put another statistic. The population of Russia is increasing at the rate of 3,000,000 babies annually.

Fashion Show

Fashions in Russia? We scoffed at it before we left and after seeing the badly dressed crowds on the street, in stores and theatres, had no reason to change our minds. But our guide asked us if we would like to see a fashion show and, although we doubted her approach to the matter, we were eager to see.

Our conversations with some of our Russian acquaintances had impressed on us the fact that the Soviet had had no time to date to consider such essentials as clothes. But with the end of its fifth five-year plan it was starting on a program to obtain better living conditions for its people.

It doesn't seem long since news despatches were full of the fact that the then Premier Malenkov, in his desire to obtain more goods for the consumer, had run smack into Krushchev's policy of more butter and machines. Malenkov lost, yet here was a big fashion house, with shows everyday, presenting new (and for Russia), smart styles for both men and women. It is definitely the new look.

The Fashion House is the centre for Russia's 16 republics. Here designers produce drawings, complete with swatches of materials, that are circulated all over the country. A woman in far off Kirghiz can go into the fashion centre in her district and, after viewing the sketches, select style, size and color. Twice a year meetings are held of all fashion representatives of the 16 republics. When we were there 220 designs were in stock with 70 new ones being added.

In a large room, centred with a raised walk, a score or more of men and women (all had paid three roubles) were listening to the commentator.

The New Look

"Soviet people have the desire now to dress as well as possible," she said. "This is why production in this industry has greatly increased. Our task is to introduce good fashions to our industry. This year the look is soft in material and design. Wide skirts, low necks for summer and embroidery is fashionable (the low neck is part of new look). Length of skirt is 35-38 centimetres from floor."

Although it was end of June, we saw some of the summer styles, some for fall and a good looking man modelled what the well-dressed male will wear in Russia. As far as I could see, this is still a secret from the masculine population. We noted that the lines of mens clothes followed the English suit. Trousers have lost the width that makes the male Russian seem to flop along the street. Suit coats adhere to the long look of a couple of years ago. Sport styles are good, with tweed jackets, contrasting gabardine slacks and bright soft sweaters. Ties were colorful, but all in all styles were conservative.

Russian women will wear green, brown and an intense shade of light navy this next year. They do not like black, although the two outfits shown were black wool suits, in good material, one trimmed with galayak and the other having a seal trimmed cape. Housecoats were modelled for kitchen wear, suggesting that a woman worker rushes into the house, grabs off her babushka, sheds her shapeless work clothes and slips into one of the pretty colorful ensembles to do her kitchen work.

Beach clothes, too, had their place as had maternity dresses. The latter, a slick number, had domed pleats that could be let out as required. A tricky arrangement at the neck made the dress useful for another nine months after the arrival of the baby.

Today Russia is attacking her clothes problem as she has every other . . . on a planning board that produce a pattern to raise the clothing standard of her millions of people. It may be a few years before the designs come near those of fashion houses in the western world, but they are trying and the clothes we saw would have passed in London, New York or Victoria.

While we never did see any smart clothes for sale, we did pass one window display of hats that was most unusual. First, because Russian women seldom wear hats. Secondly because one of our party, who is a top fashion writer, swears that one hat was a copy of a Paris model, the original having been purchased by one of Canada's largest department stores.

LONDON (AP)—Astonishing . . . gratifying . . . grand . . . somewhat bizarre.

President Eisenhower's offer to trade military blueprints and aerial reconnaissance with the Russians struck the imagination of Europe today in all these ways and more, even among those who admitted they didn't expect anything to come of it.

Only the Russians—and their Communist supporters in the West—were gingerly cautious in their reaction. They gave signs of being caught off guard. "Like Rocks the Big Four" was the banner front-page headline in Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, one of Britain's big newspapers.

The London News Chronicle said "had it come from anybody else we might have caught a whiff of a political manoeuvre; but it is plain from all who were present that there was a man truly saying what he deeply felt."

"Its chances of acceptance must be almost nil . . . If Soviet Russia in the next 48 hours agrees to the proposal, then times have changed indeed."

"But what the speech accomplishes is suddenly to raise Geneva from the clammy folds of petty technicalities, from the orders of priority on this or that agenda, to what is in fact the true summit—the idealism which is prepared to fight for peace at any cost."

NATURE LENDS DRAMA

Thunderstorm Punctuated Ike's Speech

GENEVA (UP)—The high drama of President Eisenhower's "first great victory over skepticism"—to use the words of French premier Edgar Faure—was intensified by a thunderstorm.

The President's dramatic proposal that the U.S. and Russia open their countries to each other for unprecedented mutual inspection of military plants and establishments, was made as a bolt of lightning struck near the Palais des Nations.

"I didn't expect to blow the lights out," the President said. A French spokesman, Pierre Baraduc, later said the emotion was so intense in the conference room that "nobody noticed that the lights went out."

When the lights came back on, Premier Faure told his Big 4 colleagues Mr. Eisenhower's speech was one of the "most moving moments" he had ever experienced.

"This is an extremely practical way to restore confidence in the world," Faure said. "The world's chief enemy is fear."

GENEVA (CP)—President Eisenhower's "let's swap secrets" offer to the Russians clinches his personal position as the dominating figure at the Geneva conference.

His almost sensational proposals for exchanging military blueprints and affording reciprocal aerial reconnaissance facilities bring the "summit" talks down to the level of the ordinary man and woman.

The President's ideas, dramatic in themselves, were given special punch by their presentation. They were, it is said, inserted at the last moment. When the President came to them, he removed his glasses with a theatrical flourish and addressed himself to the Russian delegates in the earnest, almost dramatically sincere fashion that has marked his speeches here on peace and war. "Gentlemen," he said, "I have been searching my heart and mind for something . . . that could convince everyone of the great sincerity of the United States in approaching this problem."

A FLASH OF LIGHTNING Then, speaking without notes, the president made his proposals—and as he finished there was a lightning flash and the lights went out in the conference chamber of the Palais des Nations.

The dramatic nature of the speech, coming after three days of difficult and often artificial argument on Germany, has transformed the atmosphere at the meetings.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

I am a great believer in doing whatever the doctor orders. Doctors, I feel, know what they are about, and when they tell you to do or don't something, you should do or not do it.

But I'm a bit puzzled by the orders issued by Dr. David Gelfand, a heart specialist in Philadelphia.

Dr. Gelfand says some people worry so much about their jobs, they are apt to worry themselves into a heart attack.

Which is no doubt true. But just listen to Dr. Gelfand's suggestion about how to avoid said heart attacks.

"When the personality pattern is dominated by an inhibition of expression," he says, "we advise the patients to go back to their jobs, but not just sit quietly in a corner."

"We want them to go back and blow their stacks at their bosses."

In words of one syllable, the good doctor suggests you tell off the boss to ease the steam pressure building up between your ears.

Well, as I said before, I believe in doing whatever the doctor orders.

And I am glad to report that Dr. Gelfand adds the suggestion that a certain amount of tact be used when telling off the boss.

But somehow, I find it a little difficult to frame a heart-attack-relieving speech along these lines:

"Excuse me, boss, I wish to be tactful about this, and I am sorry to bother you."

"But you are an ignorant slob who wouldn't be behind that desk if you hadn't married money. When brains were handed out, you were hiding behind the cupboard door. If it weren't for hard working, solid characters like me, this firm would have gone on the rocks years ago."

"If they ever held a stupidity contest, you would win in a walk."

"That is, if you don't mind me saying so, sir."

Tact or no tact, I think I'd prefer a heart attack.

But, on the other hand, if one followed Dr. Gelfand's advice, one could certainly avoid worrying about one's job. One wouldn't have a job for one to worry about.

ONE OF FIRST BOYS to receive Queen's Scout certificates from Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace at ceremony Thursday night was 16-year-old William Wansbrough, 3804 Millburn, of Parkdale Troop. Lieu-

Highest Scout Awards Presented 26 Boys by Lieutenant-Governor

The Oak Bay United Church hall was filled with scout officials and parents Thursday night for presentation of Queen's Scout certificates to 26 scouts from Victoria and district troops by Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace.

Present for the ceremony in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan, Mayor Claude Harrison and Times publisher Stuart Keate, vice-president of the B.C. Scout Association.

District commissioner George Barr introduced each boy to the lieutenant-governor. Most of the boys will attend the world scout jamboree in August at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

SEND-OFF

"And I'll be in Vancouver to see you off," promised His Honor, himself a former scout.

Each new Queen's scout snapped a fast salute. Mr. Wallace addressed a few quiet, personal words to each youth.

He called the awards "the highest point in the scouting career, a point you will remember the rest of your lives."

He was a little regretful also, on the fact his term of office is soon ending.

"The last five years have been ones of happy memories... and some of the happiest have been with scouts in that great movement."

"Parents of the scouts here have just cause to be proud of their sons."

Mr. Kiernan, speaking to Mr. Wallace as a former scout and touching on the scout ideal, said "in the past five years you have set a good example of service to others, which scouts can follow."

BETTER PLACE

Further, "I believe scout training is of great help to the future civilization of this globe. B.C. will be a better place because of your graduation."

The boys receiving the coveted certificates came from troops throughout the area.

They were: Ellis Meads, Belmont troop; Ernest Quon, Chinese; Alvin Marryatt, Grant Craigmyre and Gerald Cuthbert, Esquimalt; Bill Buxton, Peter Davies, Jim Whiteaker and William Cragg, Fairfield.

Stephen White and Wilfred Killingsta, Gorge Vale; Gordon Spriggs, Parkdale; C. H. A. Little and Wilfred Lund, University School; Barry Bennett, Robert Miller and John Melkie, 3rd Victoria; Peter Bishop, John Hoag and Stanley Smyth, View Royal; Ron Pinfold, George Megaw, Robert Watt, Michael Deane and Gordon Bates, Windsor Park.

WALLACE KNOWS NOTHING OF RUMORED APPOINTMENT

Rumors that Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace is in line for the position of Governor-General of Canada were given a terse setback Thursday night by His Honor himself.

Quered on the possibility, following presentation of Queen Scout certificates to 26 scouts in Oak Bay United Church Hall, he said: "I don't know anything about it."

He is due to retire as the Queen's representative in B.C. in September, and his awarding of scouting honors was one of his last official functions here.

Rumors of the higher position for Mr. Wallace followed his and Mrs. Wallace's recent trip to England where they were feted at Royal functions.

Such an appointment would be in line with the policy of a Canadian being given the honor. Governor-General Vincent Massey was the first Canadian named to the office and his term expires next year. Being from eastern Canada, it has been pointed out the next governor-general possibly would be from the west, and because of Mr. Wallace's popularity, he could be in line for the job.

Two-Year Terms Given Soldiers

Magistrate Says Robbery 'Brutal, Uncalled For'

Two-year penitentiary terms were imposed in city police court today on two Gordon Head soldiers who beat and robbed a city man last Saturday night.

Deaf-Mute To Tackle Juan de Fuca

A Vancouver deaf-mute lino-type operator, 44-year-old Douglas Rivette, announced Thursday he will challenge Juan de Fuca Strait from Victoria at the end of the month.

But one-legged U.S. Navy vet, Albert Posey, who said Thursday he would try the strait before Sunday, today withdrew from the planned attempt.

He said he will postpone his swim, perhaps indefinitely, due to a slight accident to his good leg Thursday night.

And Victoria Bob Bowden, 23, who had planned to take off from Gonzales Point at 3 a.m. today, postponed his attempt for the second time, due to gale-force winds.

Douglas Rivette is the 18th swimmer to state intention to make a crossing. The former Victoria printer said he will start at midnight July 31.

KNOWN HERE

A former Victoria Press employee, he was well-known as a sportsman here, particularly in baseball and wrestling circles.

A fellow printer who worked with Rivette seven years ago said: "He was always interested in sports, either to play or watch, and he was a good mixer. If he could talk I imagine he'd be quite a good wind-jammer."

Rivette, heavily muscled and weighing about 215 pounds, has been swimming about five miles every second day at White rock, near Vancouver, in preparation for the 18.3-mile swim.

Albert Posey said at noon he injured his good knee while swimming at Crystal Garden.

ON LEAVE

He added he may not be able to spare time for the attempt now before next summer. He is employed as a hospital technician in Portland and is on leave from his job.

He told the Times he has a brother, serving with the army in Europe, who is also a distance swimmer. He hopes his brother will be home and able to make the swim a double event or perhaps a family contest some time in the future.

Next week, attempts will likely be made by Bowden (planning on July 30), and German immigrant John Giese of Vancouver, who has failed in three attempts so far.

Thomas to Get Fund Donations At Civic Dinner

The mayor's fund for Bert Thomas stood at $359 at noon today.

Plans have been laid for a presentation ceremony Monday night at a civic banquet at Empress Hotel.

The swimmer, his wife and daughter will be guests of honor.

Meeting Called Next Week On Beaver Lake Horse Track

Saanich reeve Joseph Casey has called a meeting of Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee to deal with the Beaver-Elk Lake racetrack proposal Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Victoria City Hall.

The issue had been referred to the committee earlier for study and recommendation. The committee has been given a modified plan for the proposed $500,000 development which aims at erecting the track and park facilities in a manner which would not be unwelcome to neighborhood landowners.

The track is a promotion of Island Turf Club Ltd. of Vancouver. The proposed site is city-owned.

Local Sailors Fight for Lead In Royals Race

Easterners Take First-Day Honors

By MONTE ROBERTS

Two Vancouver Island crews challenged the lead of freshwater sailors from Montreal today as the third race in the Royals Regatta passed the halfway mark in the waters off Gordon Head.

The Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club were fighting it out neck and neck in an attempt to recover from an early lead piled up Thursday by the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, Montreal.

The eastern crew piled up a commanding lead by winning both of the first day's races, ending the day with 14 points as against Vancouver's 12 and Victoria's 10.

FULL AHEAD

But following a perfect start in flat calm waters and light airs the RVCY crew and the RCNSA sailors pulled ahead of the other five Dragon class yachts and rounded the first marker about 100 feet ahead.

On the second leg of the course the two Victoria yachts steadily increased their lead, taking advantage of a close inshore course to avoid contrary tides.

It appeared at press time that either the Esquimalt navy club or the Cadboro Bay civilian club would pick up first place in the initial race today. This would put both in contending positions to take the Royals Regatta which is being held in Victoria for the first time this year.

In the two races Thursday the Royal St. Lawrence surprised salt-water sailors by their skillful sail handling under difficult conditions. The morning race was run in wind less than 10 miles per hour; the evening race in Cadboro Bay, in very brisk wind.

Despite the fact that the sailing experience of the Montreal yachtsmen had been confined to non-tidal waters, they seemed to have solved the problems presented by ocean sailing.

However, observers here agreed that the Royals Regatta still has a long way to go and none is willing to predict the winner.

Jade Rings Bring Fine to Chinese

Fine of $50 or one month in jail was imposed on a Chinese man, Kork Min Wong, when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to having unlawfully imported goods in his possession April 5.

Court was told the accused had four jade finger rings and two earrings on which duty had not been paid.

The rings, which the accused was attempting to sell, came from Hong Kong.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Was Calgary known by any other name before it was named Calgary?—T. N. G.

A.—A Calgary dispatch on the front page of the daily Times, July 18, 1935, said: "A colorful pioneer who knew many adventures on the prairies and in the foothills of Alberta, G. C. King, OBE, the first Northwest (Mounted) Police constable who set foot in Calgary, died at his old home today, 87 years of age. He was a member of the police party under Inspector D. Brisebois, who in 1875 founded Fort Brisebois. Later named Fort Calgary, two years later he resigned from the force and entered the business life of the new settlement. He became Calgary's first postmaster in 1885, and held the post for 36 years." He was a member of the first council. The Cyclopaedia of Canada, published in 1935, does not mention the name Brisebois. Calgary derived its name from an ancestral seal on the island of Mull, Scotland. The place had 500 people by 1884, in which year it was incorporated as a town. It was made a city in 1893.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

FIVE FOR THE SHOW: Momma, Poppa, and their triplet Yorkshire Terriers will be "on the line" Saturday when the Victoria City Kennel Club holds its annual outdoor show at the home of Mrs. Margot Bowden, "Drumadon," at 3775 Haro Road. The show, open to the public, will start at 2.15 p.m. The Yorkshire family which appears to be looking for big things has its home at that of Miss S. Pike, 1936 Brighton.

They're all selling at $1.30 a pound. Mint chocolate fudge is $1.10 a pound. The candies are all made right in the home of the lady who sells 'em, and she uses her own original recipes. If your weakness is fudge, you can have walnut, brazil, coconut or maple creme for 80 cents a pound, or mint creme and coconut ice for the same price.

To add a few more pounds, let's look at some pastries, cakes and pies. For the summer-popular berry shortcakes, the home-made sponge cakes selling for 20 cents each and two for 35 cents are just what you need. Another specialty I've discovered is the display of whole wheat bran muffins, 40 cents a dozen. Raisin scones are 30 cents a dozen. Very delicious rice cake, light fruit cake and cherry cake, all made from old English recipes with rich butter, cost 65 cents a pound. I told you they'd put on pounds! But they're so-o good for you, and wonderful tasting, too.

Of course, the local fruits and vegetables are in abundance, too. Today I saw round, red raspberries at 25 cents a box and strawberries, two for 43 cents. A heaping four-pound basket of either black currants or red currants cost $1.50, and they really are heaped high. In the vegetable line, there are firm, sweet tomatoes at 20 cents a pound, and brand new potatoes at either two pounds for 25 cents or four pounds for 25 cents. Fresh peas are two pounds for 45 cents, and broad beans are 20 cents a pound.

Flowers are another bright thought. Begonias in unbelievable hues are 35 and 50 cents a plant. Cinerarias in all colors are priced from 50 cents to 75 cents. Blooming pansies are 10 cents a plant and rust and golden toned marigolds are 25 cents a dozen. Large bouquets of Sweet William to grace your summer table are 15 cents, in all colors.

Sisters' Interests Join In Wide Field of Arts

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Meeting an only sister for the first time in 20 years can be exciting in any instance, but when talents, hobbies and interests of the two women dovetail neatly and complement each other, then the meeting becomes an exciting experience.

That is the way it has been for Mrs. Peter Rhodes (Felicity), who came from England a short time ago to visit her sister, Mrs. Patrick Birley (Patience) at her home on Transit Road. "It was to be a short visit, four weeks to be exact," Mrs. Rhodes tells you, "but we have had so much to talk about, I'm still here at the end of seven weeks."

The "so much to talk about" includes a keen interest in the arts. With Mrs. Rhodes it is costume designing and painting and with Mrs. Birley painting and photography.

Her talents have given Mrs. Rhodes a wealth of experiences that include work of designing costumes for Noel Coward's stage production of "Cavalcade" and a two-year stint of designing costumes for George Bernard Shaw plays at the Malvern Festivals in England. Not only did she do the original sketches for the costumes but she was also in charge of the actual making up of the designs.

REMINISCENCES

"I had a corps of 'wicked old girls' doing the sewing," she reminisces, "retired chorus girls who couldn't kick any more. They had a fund of hair-raising stories and tongues that were sharp and often cruel. Looking at them it was surprisingly hard to find the beauty they once must have had."

"Shaw had the bluest eyes I have ever seen," this interesting visitor from England remembers, "and they used to twinkle out from that bushy mass of white eyebrows and beard in a startling manner. He was an amazing man, not nearly as brusque as people thought and always so very kind to young people. He seemed to have such a sympathetic understanding of their problems."

Her memories of Noel Coward include the experience of sitting in on a session in Charles Cochran's home at a play reading and of listening to Cochran and Coward go over the lyrics and dialogue from beginning to the end. "It was better than a first-night show," she says.

Following the Malvern stint, Mrs. Rhodes went to Central School of Arts and Crafts in London and later worked for three years with the Birmingham Repertory. In London she assisted in designing costumes for the play, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." "It was second string there," she says, "someone else was in charge." She also worked on costumes for a Barry Jackson play that toured Canada.

Ree, 4-1035, or Mrs. E. Jones, 4-5366.

GOODWILL VISIT

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-five Ontario girl guides recently sailed for Europe on a goodwill visit to the Girl Guide Chalet in Switzerland, the international meeting place for guides from all over the world.

SUSCEPTIBLE AGE

The age group between 5 and 17 is most susceptible to poliomyelitis but the disease may attack any age.

The war came along soon after she was married and while her husband was in the services Mrs. Rhodes worked in the drafting department of the air corps, and did some costume designing for plays produced by the services.

Today she laughingly says she is in semi-retirement. She lives with her husband and an eight-year-old daughter, "post-war edition," in the charming old-world village of Ifley, close to Oxford, in England. In a stone cottage of Regency design, "with the hills directly behind us, a garden that slopes sharply to the river and a view of an ancient cathedral that is visited yearly by hundreds of tourists."

Mr. Rhodes is a well-known archeologist with an imposing number of articles and books published under his name. His hobby is collecting old English water colors.

TREE-SHADED STUDY

They have a workshop in the stone cottage, which they have named "The Cave" because its windows are darkened by a huge chestnut tree in the garden. It's in "The Cave" that husband and wife work side by side. Mrs. Rhodes doing black and white drawings for museums of her husbands' discoveries ("pots" she calls them) and Mr. Rhodes working on articles or on the mounting of his pictures.

"After seeing my sister's wonderful workshop here, I'm a little envious," Mrs. Rhodes says, "and more than ever I realize we should do something about that chestnut tree. However, I don't suppose we ever will. It is such a beautiful tree." (Mrs. Birley has a large, well-lighted combined studio and dark room at her Transit Road home.)

MUCH ALIKE

The two sisters, remarkably alike in their ways of speaking and of expressing their thoughts, have been separated most of their lives, with brief meetings in between. When they were very young their parents came out to Canada and they were brought up in the homes of separate grandparents. "We did meet in school," Mrs. Rhodes remembers, "but as you know, in private schools in England, the older ones do not see very much of the younger ones and so we had very little time to actually get to know each other."

Later, Mrs. Birley came to Canada to live. Mrs. Rhodes remained in England.

"We have always corresponded," Mrs. Rhodes says, "and somehow through our letters we have grown very close together."

Next week she leaves again for England and her home near Oxford. "But I'll be back again," she promises, "and next time I hope my husband will be with me. You can be sure it will be long before another 20 years."

LONG

Teased—and Got Splashed

That Gus in the boat the day Joan swam. I really splashed him. He got 12 letters in the morning mail, so he stuffed them all in his pockets and took them out in the boat with him. Then he teased us all, especially if we haven't got any. He shuffles them like a deck of cards and holds them for you. "You can touch them but not read them," he'll say, "and I'll even let you read them for a shilling." Then, he leaned over in the water and held them cut to me. Honestly. Still, I do really like it. I usually get something, even if it is only fan mail from me. I don't know.

The day I didn't have to swim, mother and I visited Mr. Stickland, the hotel manager, and his wife. They have a beautiful suite in the hotel with a balcony looking out over the channel. We said that we were going to stay, and must be getting tired of us. We are the only ones who ever order a carte, or laugh at all in the dining room. Everyone else seems so old and sober. Our table is always lively. But Mr. Stickland said he was glad we were having fun and to go right ahead. That's what the hotel is for. I don't think there's a other table in the dining room where anyone would go at all. Well, maybe I'm exaggerating but there certainly aren't any young people like Joan and me.

He mixed me a cocktail, fruit juices, and called it the Channel Special. Then another one, called the Marilyn Be Special, and they were both awfully good. I must get the recipes pineapple juice, apricots and cherries and stuff.

Then at night I just stayed in my room and read, as I said before, more tired than if I had swum five miles. I finished Battle Cry and I'm starting Igor Gouzenko's Fall of a Nation. It was something about himself, but it's a novel. I think I'm going to like it. Then I wrote a letter and went to sleep.

FIRED SUPERINTENDENT HITS OUT

Nursing Home at Melfort 'Just Million-Dollar Front'

MELFORT, Sask. (CP) — The former superintendent of a new $1,000,000 provincial government nursing home here says it is a "million-dollar front behind which the aged and infirm are improperly cared for."

J. R. Fernets, who says he was fired by Welfare Minister J. H. Sturdy because he insisted upon more staff, said in an interview

Thursday the CCF government "is trying to keep a showplace for the public at the expense of nursing care."

Premier T. C. Douglas said in a statement that the trouble "might not be the lack of staffs as much as a failure to utilize the staff on an efficient basis."

Mr. Fernets said he had received complaints from relatives that one of his elderly "guests" had been left unattended for 13 hours in a wheelchair and that others—unable to help themselves—had been forgotten for hours in lavatories and bathtubs.

A government employee for nine years, he termed his staff "entirely inadequate." He had 26 nurses for 150 patients.

Pique Causes Mass Suicide By 5 Girls

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — The bodies of five girls, whose ages ranged from 14 to 26, were found hanging from branches of trees near their home here early today.

The girls were the daughters of an Indian market gardener and it is thought that they decided on mass suicide because their parents refused them permission to visit the home of an elder brother.

Canadian Mine Union Elects Sudbury Man

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP) — Nels Thibault of Sudbury, Ont., Thursday was elected president of the newly-formed Canadian section of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

Thibault was unopposed after B.C. regional director Harvey Murphy declined nomination. Murphy was installed by acclamation as western vice-president.

Another Sudbury man, William Kennedy, was elected eastern vice-president, with William Longridge of Toronto becoming secretary-treasurer of the Canadian section.

Delegates to the annual meeting charged the U.S. government with insulting the people of Canada and the union.

Their charges arose from a threat by the committee to bar non-U.S. members of the union at the border.

ENOUGH'S ENOUGH

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — When sailor Joseph O'Connell of Jacksonville, Fla., survived the crash-landing of a navy patrol bomber near here Wednesday it was the third time he had escaped injury in a plane mishap.

Thursday, the 36-year-old reservist asked the local navy recruiting office for transportation home—by train. His request was granted.

635 Miles Closed On Alaska Highway

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta travel bureau reported Thursday that 635 miles of the Alaska highway are closed to traffic because of heavy rain. Travel is banned from the southern terminals at Dawson Creek to mile 635 at Watson Lake.

NOT WORTH IT

Wallet Brings Jail Term

VANCOUVER (CP) — Romaine Simpson, 33-year-old Vancouver salesman, will spend a year in jail because he dropped his wallet. When Simpson identified the wallet at police headquarters, he was arrested. In police court Thursday he was sentenced to a year in jail on a charge of possessing burglar tools.

Fun in the Sun

Good weather seems to have arrived finally after a month's delay. Thousands of Victoria youngsters are now convinced July 21, not June 21, is the first day of summer among them these three caught by Times photographer Bill Halkett on Dallas Road waterfront: Bernadette Neyts, 10, left; little Paula, three, who couldn't remember last name, and Olga Neyts, three. Weatherman reports a high of 65 degrees today which may not be too warm but is "tops" after the treatment the city has been receiving. He points out winds are keeping the mercury down, winds which were expected to increase to westerly 25 late this afternoon or evening. But, he added, blue skies will continue "probably for the whole of the week-end."

Peronista Party Head Resigns; New Violence in Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—Papal nuncio (ambassador) Mario Zanin said today the seven-month-old controversy between church and state in Argentina is near settlement.

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Rear Admiral Alberto Teissaire, Argentina's vice-president, announced today his resignation as head of the Peronista party.

Teissaire's unexpected announcement came amidst political demonstrations marked by some violence.

Political activity, including formation of new parties, has heightened since the abortive June 16 revolt.

Teissaire issued a party statement Thursday calling on all political parties to support a truce appeal made by President Peron in a speech earlier this month.

Peron announced on July 13 he was stepping down as head of the Peronista revolution to become "the president of all Argentines, friends and foes."

He was not an official in the party itself.

SEVERAL ARRESTS

One person was reported killed by gunfire in political violence early today.

The shooting, second outbreak in 24 hours, occurred as members of the opposition Radical party left the political rally after midnight and paraded through the city's movie district.

Police arrested several demonstrators as crowds leaving the theatre milled in panic.

Pope Ailing

VATICAN CITY (UP)—Pope Pius XII is undergoing infrared ray treatment for a rheumatic pain in his right shoulder, Vatican sources said today.

The papal physician, Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, said the 73-year-old pontiff's general condition was good.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $300; ENTRANTS FAIL AGAIN

The Times' popular crossword puzzle contest prize hits the $300 mark since no winner was found to last week's teaser.

One setback for many contestants was found in the clue "May be carefully noted by a student of an old manuscript." Most puzzlers gave the answer as "date" but "data" was judged to be the more comprehensive word. The date would merely be one piece of data. Also, there must be a certain amount of data but perhaps no date at all.

Other stumbling blocks were "Star" for which the common answer was "Stay" and "Ace" which most contestants thought should be "Act."

Complete answer and explanation of last week's puzzle together with the new contest for this week will be found on Page 23 of today's Times.

LOGGERS' SPORTS

World Champs Clash Saturday at Sooke

Two world champions will perform Saturday in the famous loggers' sports to be held in conjunction with All Sooke Day, annual celebration on the Sooke River flats.

Ardiel Wickheim, of Sooke, a well known performer in the log burling competition, will be making his first public appearance since he won the world's burling championship at Spokane last month.

His stiffest competition likely will come from his younger brother, Jubiel, who won the event at Sooke last year.

DEFENDS TITLE

Most spectacular event on the program will see Dan Sallor of Ketchikan defending his title in the tree-climbing competition. Holder of world's records in climbing contests on the Pacific coast, he expects his hardest competition from Malcolm Hopper, logger of Cheshire, Ore.

Other events on the day-long program will be children's sports, baby contest for youngsters from rural areas with the Victoria Daily Times cup as grand prize, salmon and beef barbecues, the annual gold rush and midway, and other loggers' sports such as power saw falling and bucking.

The event will close with a dance at Sooke Community Hall Saturday night.

Saigon Riot Protested By Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian members of the three-nation armistice commission in Indo-China have been instructed to protest last Wednesday's riot in Saigon in which mobs attacked the commission's headquarters, External Affairs Minister Pearson said today.

Mr. Pearson informed the Commons that Canadian officials were told to associate themselves with Indian and Polish commission members in protesting the riot and asking Viet Nam authorities to ensure against recurrence of "such a deplorable event."

The minister said Canadian representatives were "singularly fortunate" and were neither harmed nor suffered property loss.

500,000-Man Force Will Bolster NATO

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's first rearmament bill for West Germany's new 500,000-man defence force won final parliamentary approval today.

The Bundesrat (upper house) swiftly passed two bills authorizing the government to call up the first volunteers this year and creating a permanent civilian committee to screen the appointment of all senior officers.

The bills now go to President Theodor Heuss for his signature. They were approved by the Bundestag (lower house) last week.

Today's vote cleared the way for Adenauer's government to take the first steps toward building up the 12-division army, 1,300-plane jet air force and coastal-defence navy pledged to the Atlantic alliance.

Defence ministry officials said the first officers enrolled will be sent to NATO headquarters, probably early next week. More volunteers are due to enter training schools in the United States, Britain and West Germany in the fall.

'CONSTRUCTIVE, VITAL, IMAGINATIVE'—PEARSON

OTTAWA (BUP)—External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson today called President Dwight Eisenhower's proposal to exchange defence blueprints and freedom of the skies with Russia "most imaginative, important and constructive."

But he declined in the House of Commons to make a full-dress policy statement on the proposal.

"The statement is too important to make an analysis," Pearson said when George Hees (PC, Toronto-Broadview), asked for the cabinet's comment.

Government officials, according to informed sources, are concerned about the effect of President Eisenhower's proposal on Canada. Involvement is seen possible because of U.S. defence installations on Canadian soil.

Forest Fires Raze Big Area In Ontario

200,000 Square Miles Closed Down; Menace Worst in Seven Years

By The Canadian Press

Ontario's rich timberlands, scarred by forest blazes since late spring, were faced today with the worst fire menace in seven years.

The situation is so bad that 200,000 square miles of woodlands, nearly a quarter of the province, has been sealed to public travel.

Volunteers were rounded up from street corners, beer parlors and streets to help fight the outbreaks. Some short-term prisoners have been released from jails to help.

All told 110 fires were burning through the north country. Thirty-nine were raging unchecked, defying the battles of 4,500 firefighters.

Some 250,000 acres of forest has been destroyed so far this year.

New fires are starting faster than the old ones can be stamped out. A quarter of the province is one big tinder box because of a hot spell and little rainfall, the Ontario forestry department said.

The fire-fighting has been continuous since last May 15, the longest period without a break in Ontario's history.

The B.C. Forest Service reported today the forest fire hazard in B.C. is nearing the "critical" stage.

Officials said ten days of continued dry hot weather could force a woods closure.

More than one-fifth of all forest fires in B.C. this year occurred last week. There were 159 fires, raising the year's total to 524.

None of the fires still burning are on Vancouver Island. Fighting forest fires has cost B.C. $91,315 so far this year.

In UN Tentative Plan by India

NEW DELHI (AP)—India was reported today to be taking the first tentative steps seeking United Nations membership for a number of Asian and European countries—both Communist and non-Communist.

Diplomatic information said Prime Minister Nehru sounded out Russian and British leaders, in the course of his visit to Europe, advocating UN membership for all nations represented at the Bandung Asian-African conference—except Red China—and for the Communist East European satellites, Austria and Italy.

The African-Asian applicants would include Ceylon, Japan, Nepal and Libya.

Never again will I see Red Army soldiers, faces a blank mask, marching solemnly and stiffly, without remembering the two hours at a summer theatre in one of Moscow's parks when their ensemble of 150 singers ran the gamut from stirring marching songs to gentle folk melodies.

Soviet Not Satisfied With 'Blueprint' Offer

GENEVA (CP)—President Eisenhower today urged Soviet Russia to tear down the Iron Curtain and permit freer exchange of ideas and travellers between East and West.

Eisenhower made the proposal at the sixth session of the Big Four conference, which began an hour later than usual to give the foreign ministers more time to work on three other problems—disarmament, German unification and European security.

The leaders instructed their foreign ministers to continue discussions on possible ways of dealing with these problems.

An American spokesman said the Big Four arranged for a shortened meeting to begin at 11 a.m. (3 a.m. PDT) Saturday, presumably the last of the conference.

Eisenhower's remarks were directed to the fourth and last item on the agenda—possible ways of increasing contacts between Russia and the West.

James Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, said Premier Bulganin's proposal for a non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Communist East European Warsaw pact was discussed.

Hagerty made no mention immediately of whether there was any discussion on Eisenhower's proposal for an exchange of military information between Russia and the United States.

Reuters news agency quoted a senior member of the Soviet delegation to the Big Four talks as saying his government could not be satisfied with Eisenhower's proposals for an exchange of military base blueprints as a step towards world disarmament.

The spokesman said the Soviet government does not doubt the sincerity of Eisenhower's proposal. But he contended it bypasses the basic issue—the prohibition of nuclear weapons.

Nevertheless, the Soviet delegate said, the ideas would be examined along with Soviet and British disarmament plans.

Eisenhower was said to be definitely committed to leave Saturday evening for Washington and the "summit" conference is running far behind schedule.

The foreign ministers of Britain, the United States, France and Russia went back into session this afternoon after a three-hour session this morning failed to complete final recommendations to the government heads on any of the three problems under discussion.

One informed source said Eisenhower's proposals were not specifically mentioned at the morning session. This meant Foreign Minister Molotov had given no official indication of the Russian reaction.

Some quarters saw a possibility that the Eisenhower proposals might get shunted aside, along with other proposals on disarmament, German unification and European security for discussion after the "summit" conference.

The leaders appeared to be aiming now primarily at setting up directives for the guidance of a foreign ministers' conference next October and for future discussions in the United Nations sub-committee on disarmament.

The plan appeared designed to marry President Eisenhower's Prime Minister Eden's and his own projects for halting the arms race.

Faure called for an agreed reduction of arms spending by the big powers, and investment of the funds thus saved in a combined project to raise living standards in the underdeveloped areas of the world. He also outlined a system of disarmament supervision through budget disclosures, subject to checking.

United Nations, N.Y. (CP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld today announced a one-year extension in the term of Canada's Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns as chief of the United Nations truce supervision organization in Palestine.

DR. KENNY QUILTS BOXLA LEAGUE POST

Dr. Frank Kenny, of New Westminster, today revealed that he has resigned as president of the Intercity Lacrosse League.

The New Westminster dentist, who also is president of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, declined to give reasons for his unexpected resignation.

The resignation may have been caused by disputes between Dr. Kenny and Jake Proctor, playing-coach of Mount Pleasant Indians.

Dr. Kenny was quoted as saying Dr. Kenny had "fixed" league referees to make sure that the New Westminster Salmonbellies get into the league playoffs.

Monday night, Proctor denied the "fixing" charge but accused Dr. Kenny of wielding his influence over the commission to aid New Westminster at the expense of Indians.

REPORT ON RUSSIA TODAY

Soldiers at Play, Colleges, Fashion Show Intrigue Writer

(Reta Myers, well-known British Columbia newspaperwoman, was the leader of a party of 11 Canadian newsmen which has just returned from an 11-day visit to Moscow. Mrs. Myers continues a series of articles for the Times on her visit.)

I spent an evening with the Red Army. Not all of it, just some 200 singing, dancing, riotous performers who would steal the show on any stage.

Never again will I see Red Army soldiers, faces a blank mask, marching solemnly and stiffly, without remembering the two hours at a summer theatre in one of Moscow's parks when their ensemble of 150 singers ran the gamut from stirring marching songs to gentle folk melodies.

Where teams of some 40 men danced themselves into laughter and exhaustion. It was the new Russia at its best.

Someone told me that this show, which goes on the road, wasn't able to come to this continent. Such collaboration, through music and laughter, seems to me to do more to establish friendly relations among people than all the propaganda that can be put out.

It was a beautiful summer evening and the park was filled with people attending shows in the three theatres that were open. Russians may work hard during the day, but their off-time is filled with recreation and culture at every turn.

This was one of the many parks scattered through the city.

Intourist booking agency had obtained front row tickets for us at around $5. But having spent two or three days on the heights of foreign economy, we decided that we could see all we wanted for less. So we settled for what they told us were not good seats, at $3. It wasn't a large theatre by Russian standards and the seats were near the back. But hardly were we seated than an official came along and said there were seats further down. Why? I'll never know. Maybe they didn't like foreigners sitting in cheap seats.

The audience was enthusiastic. Encore after encore was called for in a unusual spaced clapping that means "repeat what you did." I could have taken hours of it. Pleasant intermission, walking around the gardens, having cold drinks in one of the restaurants, talking to the L.L.P. Canadian legation taking in the show, removed all thought of discord and tension of today's world.

Earlier in the day we had visited Lomonosov State University, said to be the tallest building in Europe. I could write pages about this centre of learning with its 21,500 students.

But a few facts are impressive enough.

The English book on the University that was given us says:

"The Soviet country presented its young people with the new buildings on Lenin Hills on September 1, 1953. Every Soviet citizen enjoys the right to education. This is a major achievement of the government, legislatively embodied in the constitution."
